200 Dead, West Starts Flood Rehabilitation

CLEAN-UP TO SEND DEATH TOLL HIGHER

Bodies of 104 Victims Found, 77 Identified In Survey of Coast Damage.

MANY STILL HOMELESS

Communication Lines Set Up Again, Roads Opened After Deluge.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES—The toll of dead and missing in southern California's most devastating flood soared over the 200 mark today as rehabilitation work continued.

The latest check showed that the bodies of 104 victims had been found and 77 of them identified. Still missing are at least 100 persons

The death toll is expected to be swelled considerably Surrounded by yellow flood waters are farm houses as yet inaccessible.

The laborious, slow removal of thick carpets of flood silt and debris continues to swell the count of victims.

Unable to Figure Damage.

Nor will the damage—caused when prolonged rains made southern California's customarily thin, gentle rivers swirl over their banks—be estimated for some time.

Preliminary estimates by officials, however, indicated that the havoc wreaked upon public property would exceed $50,000,000 in the four of the five affected counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange.

No estimate has been hazarded as to the damage done to homes and crops.

The worst damage and most fatalities were recorded along the Santa Ana river which runs out of the Sierra Madre mountains above San Bernardino and flows to the Pacific through rich citrus lands

Many thousands of persons were made homeless in this region. Muddied flood waters still lay in wide stretches over the farm land.

Communication networks and transportation were brought back toward normalcy slowly.

Highways Opened.

Highways were being opened, enabling traffic to move all directions out of Los Angeles, with occasional detours.

At Claremont, 300 men worked to keep the rebellious San Antonio river from sweeping through the town.

Airplanes dropped food to persons marooned in the Sierra Madre mountains. Four hundred pounds of food were flown into the isolated spa of Palm Springs, sunning place of film celebrities and society folk.

Rescue workers who emerged from the Camp Baldy region brought out dramatic stories of how a huge wall of water, armed with boulders, roared down the slopes, sweeping all before it.

It was reported that 500 mountain cabins were destroyed. So was a hotel at Camp Curry and a new tavern. Many were marooned in this sector, but only one death was reported, that of a woman.

Hold-up Victims Lose Pants, $70 To Hooded Bandit

FINDLAY —(UP)— A hooded bandit who has committed a score of robberies in northwestern Ohio in the last six months forced two gasoline station attendants to take off their trousers last night while he robbed them of $70.

The holdup victims were Leslie Yoxhimer, 28, and Richard McMahon, 24, attendants of a suburban station.

The loot included $17.50 in Yoxhimer's trousers, but the trousers and money were recovered later in a garage nearby.

A customer entered while the robbery was in progress and was forced to take off his shoes.

City Councilman Clarence Jackson was driving by the station at the time and saw the trouserless attendants facing the robber. Jackson drove a block and telephoned police.

The bandit wore a burlap sack over his head and had no automobile. It was the first time he had committed a holdup here.

KILLED IN COLLISION

LONDON, Ky.—(AP)— A collision between a beer truck and a hay wagon killed Raleigh Gaines, 29, of Dayton, O., near here yesterday. The truck driver fled.

Flood, Fog Retard Hunt For Airliner

Father of Mansfielders on Lost Plane Shows Improvement.

While Jay Dirlam, father of the two Mansfield students who are missing with the TWA liner somewhere in the Sierra mountains of California, continues to show improvement, the hunt for the lost plane was almost at a standstill this morning as flood waters on the ground and rain and fog in the air hampered by land and aerial searchers.

Dirlam was reported slightly improved. It was his illness that caused his children to take the plane Tuesday night in an attempt to hurry home. The family, as yet, has received no word from the Trancontinental and Western Airways notifying them of the disaster which carried J. Tracy Dirlam, 21, and Mary Lou Dirlam, 19, down with the missing plane

A telegram last night from Rufus Tracy, jr., uncle of the young Leland Stanford students, who is in Fresno, Cal., center of the search, told members of the family to keep up their hopes, and that everything possible to locate the plane was being done.

Fresno Flooded.

Flood waters gushed into Fresno today, bringing a new obstacle to the search. A score of airplanes, assembled for the search, were quartered at the Fresno airport and a break in a flooded canal five miles north threatened to inundate most of the city.

The airport, where searchers' planes were kept, was not in immediate danger but weather conditions boded that there would be little or no flying today.

Ground parties, traveling on skis or snowshoes, were able to make little progress in the snow-covered mountains, although it had been established by persons who heard the motors of an airplane Tuesday night, that the airliner had gone down somewhere within a 30-mile radius of a

SEEKS RULING

Suit Asks If Senate Probe Committee Still Exists.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A suit which questioned whether or not the senate investigating committee was now non-existant was on file in common pleas court today.

Filed by Agnes B. Dickinson, Columbus attorney, against Lieut. Gov. Paul Yoder, the suit asks a declaratory judgment on whether or not the investigating committee died on Feb. 28, general assembly adjournment date.

In 1935 John W. Bricker, then attorney general, rendered an opinion stating that legislative committees cease to function after the legislature has dissolved.

A brief which accompanied Mrs Dickinson's petition points out that senate resolution 104 specifies that the committee which that resolution created should function until Dec. 31, 1938.

WATER PLANS NEAR REALITY

Councilmen Told Program Can Be Divided Into 9 Steps; Defers Financing.

The $225 000 water improvement program, studied and discussed at length by city council and the water development committee of the Chamber of Commerce in the past six months, today appeared nearer a reality—at least in part.

City Designing Engineer A M. Mock outlined the various steps possible in re-inforcing the system that should be given immediate attention, council's finance and water committees deferred the problem of financing until Tuesday

The immediate re-inforcements to the system outlined by Mock last night were broken down into nine different steps, any part of which could be undertaken as an individual project as a part of the comprehensive plan already approved by the state health department.

The entire project would cost the city $142,000, Mock told councilmen. He said this was all figured with WPA labor inasmuch as the city was seeking to provide jobs for that group The project

Mrs. Reibel rose from a sick bed to lead the three to safety. Elizabeth, 6, was missing Her mother raced back into the house and finally had to be dragged out by firemen. Elizabeth's body was found later in the basement

Protest Firemen's Refusal to Answer Call Despite Contract

Refusal of the Mansfield fire department to answer a call on Park avenue west road Thursday morning despite a contract with Madison township, brought forth a protest today from residents in that vicinity.

The fire which caused damage estimated at $4,000, swept the two-story hatchery building of John Thomas, about a quarter of a mile west of the city at 5:30 a. m. Thursday. The blaze took the lives of 1,800 chickens and 700 chicks.

Neighbors said they would call on Madison township trustees to learn why Mansfield firemen declined to answer the call although the township pays $2,000 annually for this service.

Fire Chief Charles J. Scesburger said that the contract with the township provides "that whenever we have a rig out of service, we are not obligated to make the call and leave the city without the protection of at least two trucks."

He said that when the call came in Thursday morning the Central station equipment had just returned from another call in the city and had to tow in one of the 20-year-old trucks which had burst a water jacket.

He explained that with only two pumpers at Central station and with one out of service if firemen made the run outside the city, there would have been no equipment at Central station to answer a city call outside of the aerial truck.

Meanwhile a special council committee appointed Tuesday by President Karl P. Troll, conferred today with Madison township trustees on a renewal of the fire department contract which expires April 15. The committee consists of C. N. Shultz, chairman; Fred Miller and George C. Kyle.

Paralyzed Student to Get His 'Chance' At Recovery

Spine Specialist on Whom He Pins Hopes to Be Cured to Be Brought Here by Lutheran Pastors.

Michael Ondov will have his chance.

The young divinity school student, graduate of Wittenberg college, who lies in General hospital in the grip of paralysis which has held him prisoner since Nov. 5 when a car in which he was riding turned over, is to have his "50-50 chance" at recovery.

Lutheran pastors of Mansfield (Ondov was studying for the Lutheran ministry) have obtained the services of the spine specialist on whom young Ondov pins much of his hopes. He will visit the boy either today or the first of the week.

Ask Congregations to Aid.

On Sunday, March 13, three Lutheran pastors will take up contributions from their congregations, and two others will follow at a later date. Those who will ask their church members to come to the aid of young Ondov a week from Sunday are Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, First Lutheran church; Rev. Herman Gilbert of St. Paul church, and Rev. Louis Wolf of St. Mark's. Rev. Herbert Garnes of St Luke's, and Rev Charles Sheriff of St. Matthews, said they have not completed their plans yet.

These ministers who have been unceasing in their efforts to bolster Ondov's courage and morale also have enlisted the interest of the Lutheran churches of the central Ohio region.

NEARS CLIMAX

Union Leaders' Case to Go to Jury Today or Monday.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—With the case expected to go to the jury this afternoon or Monday, the trial of union leaders John E. McGee and Don A. Campbell, charged with extortion, drew toward a close today.

Several state's rebuttal witnesses were to be called this morning, and final arguments were to follow.

Two rebuttal witnesses called by the state testified they paid extortion money totaling $230 to Lawrence Zitt, secretary of the Painters' District council which Campbell heads. This was an attack by the state on the credibility of Zitt's previous testimony as a defense witness.

Walter C. Foster, of Wooster, agent for the Edward M. Quinby estate, testified he paid Zitt $200 which he said the union official demanded because Foster employed two non-union painters from Wooster on a job here.

The "pay-off," Foster said, followed the breaking of two windows in the building in which the painters were working.

SHANGHAI —(INS)— Consul General Raymond Gauss today protested strongly to Japanese authorities against the action of a Japanese sentry who cuffed an American school teacher in the side of the head.

The victim, Miss Grace Brady, said the sentry struck her entirely without provocation. The incident occurred Wednesday outside the British-manned British perimeter of the international settlement. Miss Brady is an instructor in St. Mary's Episcopal school for Chinese girls.

RACE IN 17TH DISTRICT TO TOP PRIMARY

3 Candidates Out as Contest For Congress Seat Bids to Hold Spotlight.

WOLFE EYES G. O. P. TICKET

Only Three County Offices to Be Filled; Battle Looms Over Committee Posts.

With three candidates definitely in the race for congress from the 17th district and a fourth likely to file, interest in the August primary election in Richland county promises to center in the congressional battle.

Since there are only three county offices to fill at the November election, party leaders will concentrate at the August primary on laying the groundwork for future battles.

Elect 178 Committeemen.

In August, the county will elect 178 central committeemen in 89 precincts, help to name two 17th district central committeemen, and will nominate candidates for congress, county auditor, one commissioner and representative to the general assembly.

In the congressional race, Republican forces are rallying in an attempt to unseat the veteran William A. Ashbrook, Licking county Democrat, who is expected to be a candidate for his third consecutive term

Philip A. Wolfe, Mansfield, state senator for two terms and service-safety director during the last part of former Mayor Earl A. McFarland's administration, indicated today he will enter the congressional race on the Republican ticket.

Awaits "Invitation."

While he has not definitely announced his candidacy, Wolfe admitted he will be susceptible to an "invitation" from district G. O. P. leaders to carry the Republican banner against Ashbrook.

Col. Oliver H. Dockerty, Newark, retired army officer, also has announced on the Republican ticket, but political observers see a possibility of his withdrawal should district leaders swing their support to Wolfe Col Dockerty was defeated for the nomination two years ago.

ZEIS COUNSEL ASKS NEW TRIAL

Claim Verdict In Heart Balm Case 'Absolutely Against Weight of Evidence.'

(By United Press)

STEUBENVILLE—Counsel for Rev Harold C Zeis made plans today to upset a jury verdict awarding $10,000 to Mrs Cora Lillian Burnham in her $100,000 heart balm suit against the Episcopal rector

A rural jury of 12 men brought in its decision after deliberating four hours over the arguments and testimony presented during the four-day trial in federal court.

Defense Attorney John D Gardner immediately announced he would ask a new trial and failing that, would carry the case to the U S circuit court of appeals He described the verdict as "absolutely against the weight of the evidence." Harley S Cook counsel for Mrs Burnham, said he was "very appreciative and quite satisfied"

Neither the plaintiff nor defendant was in court when the verdict was returned Mrs Burnham 43, had departed for New York City and the rector remained at home with his wife the former Mrs. Emma Sharpe, whom he married in 1936 shortly after termination of his courtship with Mrs. Burnham

Mrs Burnham contended the rector courted her for eight years from the date of their first meeting in Bellefontaine in 1927, when he was a student "supply pastor," until 1935 She presented love letters he allegedly wrote her The plaintiff said he finally demanded his freedom in 1935 telling her, "I'm going to marry Emma Sharpe I'm going to hobnob with success"

COMMISSION'S DATA FOR LAST 25 YEARS GONE

Examination Papers, Physical Records Taken From Desk at City Building.

THEFTS COVER 2 MONTHS

Correspondence Also Missing; Board to Buy Safe to Guard Against Future Thefts.

Civil service commission records, some dating back to 25 years ago, today were reported missing from the commission's office in the city building, it was revealed by Dr. L C Benedict, senior commission member.

Among the records missing from the locked desk in the commission's office on the second floor of the building were former examination papers, physical records and applications of persons now employed by the city. Also included, Dr. Benedict said, was correspondence from the service director's office which had been in the commission's file.

Check Reveals Theft.

The ransacking of the desk, he said, was not definitely established until Thursday night when a complete check had been made of all former records. He said that papers had been missing on several occasions since the first of the year, but thievery was not suspected until this week.

Dr. Benedict said the only keys to the desk that he knew about were in the possession of the three members of the board—himself, Freh H. Huber, and Attorney George W. Biddle.

However, the lock was of an old type, and it would have been possible, Dr. Benedict said, to open it without a key. The lock showed no signs of having been forced.

Since the personnel of the commission has changed numerous times, there is no way of telling who may have obtained keys to the desk without knowledge of present commissioners, Dr. Benedict said.

Meeting Records Safe.

He pointed out that the missing records might cause some administration or employe in the future some difficulty in establishing certain facts concerning their employment should it ever be questioned. However, the journal with the commission record of meetings and appointments to the various positions was still in safe keeping with the secretary of the board, he said

Benedict said that a formal request to the police department for an investigation had not yet been made although he had "mentioned" the disappearance of the records to Police Chief Mead K. Bates yesterday

He said the commission will

CELEBRATING the 19th anniversary of their organization, 40 members and guests of the Jared Mansfield chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met last night at the Women's Club for a birthday dinner and program. The tables were decorated with a patriotic motif in red, white, and blue. Centerpieces consisted of red carnations with white sweet peas and narcissus and red and blue candles.

The regular business session was opened with the pledge of allegiance followed by the devotions conducted by the chaplain, Mrs. Sidney Palmer. Mrs. H L. MANSFIELD CHAPTERS TO ATTEND CONCLAVE

Mary Washington, Jared Mansfield, D. A. R. Groups Plan to Send Delegations to 39th Annual State Conference at Columbus.

MEMBERS of the two Mansfield chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution—the Mary Washington and the Jared Mansfield chapters—are preparing to attend the 39th annual state conference which will be held at the Deshler-Wallick hotel, Columbus, March 15-17.

More than ordinary interest is being shown in the conference this year as the state organization has endorsed the candidacy of Mrs. John Heaume, of Springfield, for a national office, that of secretary-general. Mrs. Heaume is state regent of Ohio, and a popular figure in D. A. R. work. Both Mansfield chapters have endorsed her and will take an active part in furthering her election, at the national conference in Washington in April.

While the conference proper opens Tuesday morning, March 15, the spectacular processional will take place Tuesday evening, followed by a play which will be presented by a Columbus group.

Wednesday afternoon the Lazarus company will give a tea honoring the delegates, through the courtesy of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. The annual banquet will be held Wednesday night with Maj. Norman A. Imrie of the Columbus Dispatch speaking on "This Befuddled World."

Faults Can Be Assets To Girl

By VIRGINIA LEE

HERE IS a young girl not quite 18. She is "not hard to look at," as the boys say, and will be graduated from high school soon. She is next to the youngest in a family of five children, all at home. Her mother, a widow, is lovely—"a sweeter mother than mine never lived," she writes.

She also has a good looking boy friend who swears he loves her and wants her to marry him soon.

Now, from that description you would think she was a fortunate girl, wouldn't you? Are you not surprised, then, to know that she is "very unhappy?" Why? It is hard for her to make friends. She wants to go to college and hasn't the means. Her brothers and sisters are carefree, and she is "fussy," she says. She likes things to be just so, and she loses her temper easily, although she tries hard not to.

Then she is jealous of the boy friend and he of her, and she doesn't want to marry yet a while because she wants to work and earn some money and help her family first (very laudable and sensible, I think.)

All of these "faults" of hers really are assets if she makes them so, I think. If she can control her "fussing" which makes her brothers and sisters think she thinks she is too good for them, her daintiness will be a real asset all through her life, making her person and surroundings, whatever they may be, neat, attractive and orderly.

Her ambition will incite her to improve herself mentally and culturally whether she goes to college or not. She is young, and as she goes about she will imitate the things other people do that seem good to her, and gradually gain poise, so that she will no longer be self-conscious. She can help herself there by concentrating on various interests and interesting people and forgetting about herself.

And feeling more worthy and worth loving, she will gradually learn not to be jealous of the good looking young man who loves her.

There is just one thing she must do to bring about all these desirable things: she must concentrate on her blessings and realize what a lucky girl she is, and forget about the "unhappiness." Learn not to fret and fume about the things you cannot help or change at home. Be thankful for happy, carefree brothers and sisters, and praise them for their good points instead of finding fault. Show them that you love them, and keep your own person and belongings so neat and clean that they will want to do likewise instead of thinking that you are too good.

D. S.: I have an idea I answered your letter in the column. The person you speak of isn't here any more, and, while at the time I thought the letter more in her department than mine, I knew the answer and told you what I thought would help you.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT YOUR TRICKS

Neglect to count the number of tricks in sight is the worst sin of a declarer at no trumps. Many an otherwise safe contract is thrown away merely because he failed to add up the tricks available in the various suits by the several methods at hand. If one way of counting does not make nine, another may produce that magic figure, even though it necessitates overtaking one trick winner with another one along the way.

	♠ A 8 ♥ 9 6 4 2 ♦ A J 10 9 8 ♣ 9 7
♠ Q J 10 9 ♥ K J 10 7 ♦ 5 4 2 ♣ 5 4	N. W. E. S.	♠ 7 4 2 ♥ 8 3 ♦ Q 7 6 3 ♣ Q J 10 8
	♠ K 6 5 3 ♥ A Q 5 ♦ K ♣ A K 8 3 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Playing at a contract of 3-No Trumps, various declarers in the South position tried different methods to reach their goal.

In all cases, the opening lead by West was the spade Q, which was won in declarer's hand with the K. Some cashed the diamond K and as the spade A was the only entry to attempt to set up the diamond suit, fared badly as the A did not drop the Q, which of course could hardly have been expected.

Those who succeeded in making the contract, realized that their success depended on the diamond suit, and with only one loser in it, decided to give up a trick in it while retaining the entry. They led the diamond K, overtook it with the A, and then gave a trick to East's Diamond Q. No matter what East decided to return, it was impossible for him to keep the declarer from cashing nine tricks.

What is the correct defense against South's contract of 4-Hearts?

Technique For Plucking Eyebrows

By GLADYS GLAD

(America's Most Famous Beauty)

ACCORDING to the latest reports from Paris, many of the smart Parisiennes now are sporting artificial eyebrows. Seems that when the beauty stylists decreed the return of the natural, full eyebrow, some of the girls found that their brows had thinned considerably, due to excess plucking. And so artificial eyebrows were introduced so that the sparse-browed damsel could achieve the new eyebrow line.

These new artificial eyebrows are unique. The tiny hairs are fastened in natural formation to a strip of skin-like fabric. A tiny bottle of fluid is used to attach the brows over the natural eyebrow line, and the effect is surprisingly like nature's own handiwork. Of course, the girl who possesses attractive brows of her own would have no need for these artifices, but they certainly are a help to the lass whose eyebrows are thin, and sparse.

Most girls nowadays have pretty well-groomed brows. They pluck them and try to keep them neat and well-cared-for, but they find the plucking is a rather painful task. Others assert that after such plucking, small eruptions appear around their brows.

In both cases, usually, the cause is improper tweezing. For there really are women, even today, who don't know how to pluck their eyebrows properly.

Whether your tweezer is the ordinary sort, the scissor-like variety or the newer, automatic type, always remember that it should be sterilized prior to using. When the brows are plucked, you know, the pores in the skin open. And if the tweezers are not perfectly clean, germs may enter these pores and cause eruptions.

First Cream Brows.

Before plucking your brows, it is wise first to smooth a generous coating of cold cream over each brow, and let it remain on for a few minutes. Then they should be brushed into shape with a small eyebrow brush, and the plucking itself should be done. After the shaping and tweezing have been completed, all remaining cream should be removed, and witch hazel or a soothing astringent should be applied. This closes the pores, tends to prevent germ infection, and tones up the skin surrounding the eyebrow sector.

Another factor that tends to make the brows look sadly neglected, is when the tiny hairs are stiff and unruly and refuse to lie in their proper alignment. But it really isn't difficult to train them. Merely brushing them frequently with a small eyebrow brush will make the tiny hairs more tractable and help to keep them neatly in place. And if the brush is moistened with a bit of plain petrolatum or odorless castor oil before each brushing, the treatments will prove doubly effective.

Some eyebrows, of course, are stubborn and refuse to respond satisfactorily to these treatments. It is possible to train such eyebrows, however, through the use of cornstarch. Before you retire at night, mix one tablespoonful of ordinary cornstarch with enough cold water to form a thick, smooth paste. Then brush your brows into shape with a small brush, and spread the paste thickly over them. Let the paste, which will quickly harden, remain on overnight. The following morning remove it with tepid water and a soft cloth. And, as the final step, brush the brows with petrolatum or castor oil, to promote their health and glossiness.

HALF OF ELOPEMENTS TURN OUT TO BE HAPPY MARRIAGES, CLAIM

(By United Press)

PASADENA, Cal.—Nearly half of all elopements turn into happy marriages, Dr. Paul Popenoe, of this city, and director of the Court of Family Relations at Los Angeles, has established.

In addition to this fact, Dr. Popenoe has made a survey and study of the runaway marriage, a classification of its causes, and other aspects of the problem that throws interesting light on the whole subject.

Dr. Popenoe's first finding is that the runaway marriage is just as dependable as that performed in the home, the church or before a justice of the peace. The success of marriage, he insists, does not depend upon the nature of the ceremony, but on the quality of the persons entering into it.

"All sorts of reasons exist for causing elopements—some laudable and some not," he said. "But, considering all the difficulties faced by an eloping couple, a success record of 48 per cent happy marriages is really greater than might be expected and is probably not more than 10 per cent lower than the average for all American marriages."

Dr. Popenoe's statistics are based upon the investigation of 738 runaway couples. He regards that number as a sufficient cross-section for establishing a statistical basis for the entire country.

"A bride snatched from parents," Dr. Popenoe said, "still figures in the most common type of elopment. These runaway or secret marriages turn out all right in 45 per cent of the cases. Even when the parents have very good cause for objection, the marriage may be happy after all.

"Other couples elope merely to avoid publicity. These include students who fear expulsion from school if their wedding is made public, as well as persons who have been in the news for some reason and dislike further publicity.

"Others in the same category elope, not to avoid publicity but to seek it. This is the case with many Hollywood marriages. However, these marriages are successful in 60 per cent of the cases."

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 6.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds omen of sudden and disruptive forces precipitated with devastating effect. These may result in an unexpected journey, removal or other drastic change. A death might be at the bottom of this, or other deep concern about an elder, and also a child.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of drastic and sudden change, which may take them into new environs, fresh business channels, or other new contacts. But these call for much calm deliberation. A sorrow or separation is probable. Writings and new contracts should bring benefits.

A child born on this day may be versatile, clever, adventurous and fond of taking dangerous hazards and long chances. It may succeed in writing, publicity, promotion or mining.

For Monday, March 7.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is a happy one, with surprising events of a stirring and exciting nature, possibly involving the private life rather than business. Social, domestic, affectional or other emotional stresses are shown, with much outlay and extravagance in putting over such functions.

Those whose birthday it is may be surprised at the lively and exciting turn of events. These should bring much social, romantic, domestic or emotional activity, with coresponding expenditures, extravagance and indulgence. In a business way, dealings with political or diplomatic bodies, mergers, secret or fraternal organizations, should have surprising if peculiar developments.

A child born on this day may have a marked social nature, with much personal charm and popularity. It may be artistic, poetic, romantic, proud, showy, convivial and extravagant.

My Neighbor Says:

A few tablespoons of chopped sweet red and green peppers make coleslaw or salads attractive and add much to their flavor.

Apples baked in pineapple juice are delicious. Peel and core the apples, cover them with juice and bake until solt.

When making blue-water, try adding a little common salt. This helps to distribute the color evenly and prevents the clothes from looking streaked and patchy.

The leather seats of chairs may be brightened by rubbing them with a good furniture polish and a woolen cloth and polishing with a dry cloth.

If you are planning an early spring frock of your own making, choose a printed wool challis.

Pearls are still the favorite beads for afternoon and evening frocks.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

MY WARNING that Dicky would be at the hotel before we got our belongings settled proved most efficacious in diverting Mary's attention from speculating upon the possible reasons for Philip Veritzen's suspicious ppecautions for our privacy at the Lansfield.

"Right you are!" she exclaimed. "We'll have to go some if we want to get under the wire by the time he shows his smiling face at the door."

She threw herself feverishly into the unpacking and settling of her things, and Miss Whitlock helped me to arrange the Lares and Penates which I invariably "lug along" as Dicky terms it, to any abode where I expect to live more than a week or two. Two or three draperies, a few colorful pillows, some of my favorite flower containers, and ornaments, together with a score of books, save me somewhat from the nostalgia which inevitably accompanies my absences from home.

"You've done it again, Auntie Madge!" Mary said when she had completed her own unpacking. She was watching me set the silver framed photographs of the children upon the mantel. Miss Whitlock was putting her few belongings away in the bedroom she was to occupy until the communicating door between her suite and ours, which Philip Vertizen had ordered should be installed together with the bolts and chains upon which I had insisted.

"Give you a soft pillow, a flower vase, a couple of books and a photograph of the kids, and you'll make any place look like home," she went on extravagantly. "And now, what say? Shall we dress for dinner as long as Uncle Dicky is going to blow us to something special? I know he'll probably have it served up here, but if we dress, it will look like a real party."

There was a nuance in her voice which cheered me immeasurably, banishing the fear of her possible nervous depression over her separation from Noel which had come to me. Her youthful resilience and buoyancy of spirit were combining with the insatiable appetite for something novel, which always has been hers, to make her mood a joyous, nonchalant one. I decided that I need not worry over her reactions any longer.

But I could not banish the vague misgivings which Philip Veritzen's elaborate precautions for our privacy had brought to me, and I found myself looking forward avidly to Dicky's arrival. I meant to seize the first tete-a-tete moment we had to confide my fears to him, with the especial stress upon the astounding revelation of Philip Veritzen's ownership of the Lansfield which Mary had just disclosed to me.

To Mary, however, I gave no hint of my anxiety, but smiled sympathetically at her youthful enthusiasm.

"Of course I'll dress, if you like," I said, "only—I wonder—"

I signaled with my eyes toward the room where Miss Whitlock was putting away her belongings, and as if I had summoned her by word of mouth, she turned and came to the doorway.

"I couldn't help overhearing you," she said, smiling, "and it's awfully sweet of you to hesitate on my account. But an embarrassing experience years ago taught me preparedness: and I always carry with me a dinner dress—of sorts—that won't crumple easily. 'It's a poor thing, but mine own,' and I shall be delighted to get into it in honor of your husband's dinner party."

"How perfectly ducky!" Mary exclaimed enthusiastically, and repeated the comment with gusto when Miss Whitlock, in a modest—but modish—dinner gown of black voile and lace, joined us in the living room. I had put on a dress of pale green, Dicky's favorite color for me, and Mary's exotic beauty fairly flamed in a canary yellow tulle with touches of orange velvet outlining the bodice. When we were dressed, Mary fashioned corsages of orchids for us from Philip Veritzen's lavish gift, and with our background of rare blossoms, we presented a festive appearance, indeed, when Dicky came in, himself irreproachably attired in dinner clothes.

Finds Women Prefer To Work for Men

CITING statistics and statements from workers themselves, Dr. Donald A. Laird, writing in a recent issue of a business magazine, says that women in supervisory and executive positions have not been a success. Of the 521 women he questioned, all of whom had worked under both men and women bosses at different times, 99 81-100 per cent said they would rather work under a man boss.

Reasons for their preferences covered a wide range — "Women bosses are too jealous—their positions go to their heads," said one office clerk. Another says, "A woman boss often bosses for the mere sake of bossing." A secretary complained that under a woman executive "one becomes a slave, mentally and physically, to 'systems'." She added that women executives delegate authority superficially but continually check up on those to whom they have given it.

Many other reasons of similar personal nature were given. Dr. Laird believes the explanation of most of those attitudes can be found in psychoanalysis. A woman worker sees in a woman boss a substitute image of her mother, of whom, Dr. Laird says, she is jealous and envious from earliest childhood, and whom "she looks upon as a persistent enemy."

Date Dislikes Go Both Ways, Each May Annoy Other

By JOAN DURRAM

(AP Feature Service Writer)

She says, "That's the last of that man for me. Phones at 6 o'clock to see if I'll go out with him that night."

He says, "No more with her. Powders her face right at table in a restaurant."

There are two sides to date problems, you see. Maybe you'd never thought of the other side. Here are check lists for both sides. Maybe it would help you to glance through them.

What He Boycotts.

The nervous girl who eats fast, puffs cigarets two a minute. He doesn't care how many cigarets, as a rule; it's the frenzy he dislikes.

The girl who makes him carry her cigaret or gloves, who leaves him on the dance floor holding her vanity bag.

Loud laughter and much attention-calling. He thinks she ought to devote some of that excess energy to self-improvement.

Waving aside compliments instead of accepting them gracefully.

The girl who won't discuss clothes when he takes an interest.

Girl who refuses—when asked—to suggest some place she'd like to go, remarking, "It's entirely up to you," and putting a do-or-die cast on the situation.

Yes-yes-er who can't do a little tactful stooging and ask the right questions occasionally.

Stony good-nighters of the "Thanks!'vehadanicetime" variety—implying it's just one of 14 dates they've had this week.

What She Avoids.

The man who doesn't show a reasonable amount of tact and consideration.

Parlor comedians who insist on holding the center of the stage. Equally undesirable: the "intellectual" who scorns anything beneath Wagner of Proust.

Non-planners who take a girl any old place with any people who happen to be around. Most girls don't insist that the man spend a lot of money. They'd just as soon go to a good movie. But they do appreciate men who give them credit for discrimination.

Fence-straddlers who always leave it to the girl to decide where they shall go. Most girls don't like to suggest things unless they know the man's interests—and what he can afford.

The man who won't talk about anything but himself and his job.

Men who vaguely ask a girl, when they leave, what she's doing, say, next Thursday or Friday—and then call up on Friday and are infuriated if she hasn't left the date open.

ASHLAND JURY FINDS GAMBLING 'STAMPED OUT'

Jurors Decide Anti-Gambling Campaign Successful; Urge Further Vigilance.

ASHLAND—That officials of Ashland county have obeyed the instructions of grand jurors in stamping out gambling, and that their efforts have been successful was the conclusion reached by a special grand jury Thursday in common pleas court.

Emphasis was made in the report on the recommendation of Judge C. C. Chapman to the January term of the grand jury, when he charged them to investigate the alleged sales of tobaccos and liquors to minors, and charges that children were being permitted to frequent poolrooms.

In the report issued after the special session, jurors recommended that law enforcement officials strictly enforce the laws dealing with charges.

The meeting was tentatively set by the January term of the grand jury, which in substance stated that since it was proven definitely that gambling was prevalent in the county, county officials would be given approximately a month to remedy the situation. They would then be called in to report as to the status.

During the session held Thursday, the jurors called in for questioning Sheriff H. F. Wallet, Police Chief Herman D. Fetzer, Mayor E. L. Smith of Loudonville, Deputy Sheriff Dale Hammond, D. E. Conrad, marshall of Loudonville, and R. G. Schnittke, Loudonville night officer.

The jury's report said: "We find that the officials of Ashland county and of the various municipalities and villages have obeyed our instructions to investigate the conditions pertaining to gambling in the county, and we recommend that they continue to enforce our prior findings. We further recommend that the laws of Ohio pertaining to the sale of cigarets to minors and the laws pertaining to admission of minors in poolrooms and establishments selling beers and liquors be strictly enforced."

The jurors also heard three routine cases, examined 13 witnesses, returned two true bills, and ignored one case.

Indictments were returned against Daniel Meehan, charged with breaking and entering into the home of Marshall Whisler, and against Carl J. Clark, accused of breaking into the granary of Robert E. Troxel on Jan. 12.

The jury refused to indict Richard DeWitt on a charge of non-support.

PORK, BEEF AND LAMB PRICES TUMBLE, CONSUMPTION GREATER

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Tumbling prices on pork chops, lamb and beef today are restoring meat to its place as the basic item of the everyday diet of the American family.

They marked a sharp contract from last fall when soaring prices forced many families to forego meat and led the C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers Union Women auxiliary to stage "meat strikes" in many cities.

John A. Kotal, secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat dealers, after a survey of price trends and meat consumption from Seattle, Wash., to Miami, Fla., said:

"Prices are far below the peak levels of last fall even in such winter resorts as Miami, where tourist demand is a factor in all food prices. The southern resort shows heavier marketing of high quality beef and sales at levels as much as 27 per cent below the prices last fall for beef of the same grade.

"Pork prices are running as much as 38 per cent lower for some choice cuts, and lamb, with even a great drop, is offering 'bargains of the decade.'"

While dropping prices also cut returns to stockmen, a nation wide campaign designed to increase meat consumption is underway. It was hoped the drive would offset any great losses to cattle raisers because of dropping retail prices.

A checkup showed governors of eight states—California, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Arizona, Washington, Alabama, Colorado and Iowa,—have proclaimed "eat-more-meat" periods ranging from one week to a month.

OBTAINS G-MAN FOR INSTITUTE

Ashland College to Conduct Second Crime School Friday, March 18.

ASHLAND—Because of the success and state-wide interest in the Ashland college crime institute last spring, the administration is arranging another institute for Friday, March 18. The 1938 institute will feature criminal detection and juvenile delinquency.

J. Edgar Hoover of Washington has promised to send a G-Man to conduct the special study which will be made in the field of moulage. Other speakers of authority will also appear on the program of the day.

Sponsored under the auspices of the college sociology department under the direction of Dr. E. E. Jacobs, the institute will be held in the assembly room of the Ashland courthouse. The program will be presented in three sessions, morning, afternoon, and evening.

The 1937 institute featured a model trial of a drunken driver under the unique Ashland plan of testing introduced by Dr. H. M. Gunn of Ashland. Edward J. Ryan, Akron reporter, served as the human "guinea pig" for the test, being one of the first to submit to Gunn's method of measuring the amount of alcoholic consumption. This "Ashland test," as it is known, has been accepted as evidence in a number of courts in various sections of the country. Spectacular arrests may not be a part of the 1938 institute but considerable interest is already being displayed in the proposed study of moulage, one of the law's newest and most efficient methods of securing circumstantial evidence.

A Farmer's Diary

March 4.

AT ONE END of our little woodland is a saucerlike depression among the trees. Heavy rains turn it into a pond, and when these are followed by a hard freeze, the result is a miniature skating rink.

This happened last week, and and for the past few days most of the children of the neighborhood have spent their spare minutes at the pond. The boys from the country school have a "hockey" team—the puck a chunk of wood, driven by curved sticks. The smaller youngsters slide on their shoes, on their sleds — on their breeches. The woods resound with shouts and laughter from early forenoon until after dark.

Even our three-year-old has caught the spirit. In his patched blue snowsuit, he truged along with his brother and sister to the pond. Presently he returned with a bloody nose and the information, "Me slide—me go boom!" But when his mother had applied soap and water, he refused to remove his mittens—"NO, me go SLIDE! Me go back and slide!"

When the children come in their cheeks are red, their eyes bright, their voices joyful. On their clothing they bring the cool sweet tang of the winter woods. They will never forget their fun.

Trying to stand in slippery places is such an instinctive human trait! What a pity that more of the thrill-hungry, grownup children of the world cannot have, somehow, as safe an outlet—as beneficial a challenge, as that provided by our woodland pond, no more than three feet deep.

TYGERS SPRING UPSET BY TRIMMING TIFFIN COLUMBIAN

Ontario Advances In Carey Tourney

Defeats Tiffin Calvert, 39 to 35, In District Meet at Carey; Meet McCutcheonsville In Second-Round Tilt Tonight.

BASKETBALL representatives of Ontario high rested today as they prepared to return to action at 8 p. m. to face McCutcheonsville in a second-round tilt of the district Class B tournament at Carey.

The sharpshooting Warriors, defending district champions, defeated the touted Tiffin Calvert combine, 39 to 35, at Carey last night to move into the second round.

Coach Orville Kibler's men established themselves as a real threat by romping over the Tiffin aggregation without much difficulty.

Take Commanding Lead.

The Ontarioans, with lanky Dick Casad leading the way, fought an uphill battle in the first stanza, but after securing the lead early in the second frame never trailed.

Tiffin came into the second quarter sporting an 8 to 7 advantage, and then the Warriors went to work. Before Calvert knew what had happened Ontario piled up 18 points while holding the Little Big Six league club to three to grab a commanding 23 to 11 lead at halftime.

Calvert came back with a rush after the intermission, and although it outscored the winners in both periods, was unable to overtake the big lead marked up by Ontario in the second stanza.

Casad Gets 14 Points.

Casad collected 14 points to lead the individual scoring of both clubs. Matt Hager contributed 13 points to the winners' cause. Dore was high man for Calvert with 14 points.

In McCutcheonsville the Warriors face another serious test in their battle to defend the crown. McCutcheonsville eliminated Fostoria St. Wendlin, 44 to 35, last night.

If Ontario emerges from the second round game tonight, they will return to Carey Friday for the semi-final affairs. The finals will be played Saturday.

Sulphur Springs which defeated Butler in an opening round game Thursday night, registered its second straight victory by drubbing Marseilles, 50 to 41.

BAER LOSES TO GUNNAR

Fin Pounds 'Buddy' All Over the Ring.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—The Baer pugilistic dynasty teetered very close to oblivion today as Buddy, the younger and bigger Baer, assuaged the wounds inflicted last night in Gunnar Barlund, of Finland, who scored a tecnnical knockout in seven rounds.

Heretofore strictly perpendicular throughout his career, Buddy remained on the upright last night, but took a two-fisted lathering which finally prompted Referee Billy Kavanaugh to step in and halt the one-sided hostilities. At the time, Baer was hanging helpless and arm weary on the ropes, with Barlund showering leather on him with both hands.

Baer Shows Gameness.

About the only thing that Baer showed against the cagy experience of Barlund was gameness of such high order that the crowd of 9,000 applauded him, instead of Barlund.

A two to one favorite in the prefight betting, young Buddy, who scaled 242½ pounds against Barlund's 200¾, never showed the remarkable punching ability which he previously had displayed against Abe Somon and Eddie Hogan in his last two New York starts. In fact, he was tied up most of the time and punched off balance by the game Finn, who won every round from the second onward. He lost the first only because two of his punches strayed out of bounds.

The fight was vicious from the out-set, one of the best heavyweight battles New York has seen in months, with both Baer and Barlund exchanging both hands at the slightest provocation — but with Buddy ultimately being punched, almost literally, full of holes

SEABISCUIT FAVORITE

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Candidates in the Santa Anita handicap, spurred on by the shouts of thousands of admirers and the jingle of huge stacks of money, neared the end of the trail to a $100,000 pot of gold today.

The fourth running of Santa Anita's famed "hundred grand" classic at a mile and one quarter found 19 entries. Out of the field along toward dusk will flash a hope that will reap a comfortable fortune for its owner—somewhere around 93,300

Pre-race favorites, with prospects of a fast track, were. Charles S Howard's Seabiscuit, handicap champion of the nation last year, winner of 12 of his last 15 starts, and Pompoon, owned by Jerome H Louchheim, one of the outsanding 3-year-olds of 1937, twice runnerup to the great War Admiral.

Mansfield Meets Jr. Order Tonight

Jack Dugger Sinks Rebound to Give Murphymen 29-27 Victory Over Favorites In First Round of District Tournament.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

MANSFIELD'S high school hoop ensemble is the darkest "dark-horse" in the Class A district tournament in Sandusky today.

The Tygers accounted for the major upset in this year's elimination last night when they outpointed a heavily-favored Tiffin Columbian quintet, 29 to 27, in a close, nerve-wracking setto in the lake city.

Coach Russ Murphy's surprise courtiers return to action in a second round game at 8 p. m. today against another Tiffin representative, John Starrett's tall, rangy Junior Order club, which defeated Willard, 30 to 17, last night. Fremont won over Norwalk, 52 to 34, in the other game on last night's program.

Share Program Tonight.

In addition to the Mansfield-Tiffin game, the schedule tonight includes tilts between Ashland and Shelby at 6, Sandusky and Fremont at 7 and Port Clinton and Bellevue at 9.

In the thrill-packed game in which the lead changed 10 times, big Jack Dugger caged the winning basket in the last 10 seconds to enable the Tygers to advance.

Mansfield trailed by four points with two minutes to go. Then Tommy Scott sank two buckets in hurried order to knot the count, 27-all.

An overtime game loomed as neither club showed any signs of scoring in the last minute.

However, with just about time enough to try for one more basket, Ike Smith made a desperate throw from near the center of the court.

Smith's effort was wide of his mark, but rebounded beautifully into Dugger's hands. Although surrounded by a host of anxious Tiffinites, Dugger jumped ahead of his guard and batted the leather through the hoop to end the most exciting game on last night's program.

Retain Supremacy.

The victory enabled the Tygers to keep their supremacy over the Columbian representatives intact. Mansfield has never lost a game to the Tiffin school.

By defeating Columbian, Mansfield won the distinction of being the first team to defeat the Tiffin outfit in a first round game in a district tournament since 1925.

Although Mansfield was on the short end of the score most of the way, it was never more than four points in the rear. That's how closely the game was contested.

Tiffin gained a four-point advantage in the first period, but the Tygers came back to knot the count 8-all at the end of the quarter.

Again in the third stanza, the losers ran their margin to four points. But the Men of Murphy again came back to tie the score 13-all at the intermission.

The third period was nip-and-tuck, and Mansfield trailed 22-21 going into the fourth frame.

Dials' short shot gave Mansfield a 23-22 lead in the first minute of the final chapter, but five free throws in a row permitted Columbian to again go ahead by a four-point margin.

With the scoring standing 27 to 23 against them, the Tygers, led by Scott, put on their game-winning rally.

The five free throws were the only points permitted Columbian in the fourth quarter.

Scott Leads Scoring.

All of the Mansfield players, including the two substitutes, Dave Shelley and Ike Smith, contributed their share to the victory, but Scott paced the scoring with eight points, and Dugger and Dials were right behind with seven apiece.

Mitten was high for Columbian in the scoring column with 11 points.

Mansfield outscored Columbian, 12 to 8, from the field, but the Tiffin players converted 11 out of 16 foul shots to remain a factor in the tussle until the finish.

Pick McNeill To Cop Title

Meets Frank Bowen In Tennis Finals Today.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Don McNeill, the blond stylist with the blazing backhand, is expected to win the men's national indoor singles tennis championship today when he meets Frank Bowden in the final

Bowden long has had all of the strokes to gain him a place in the first ten. But, a businessman and a true amateur, he never has had the time. Even yesterday, although slated for a semi-final match with Wayne Sabin, he had to go to his office as usual.

At it turned out, he didn't need a great deal of concentration to beat Sabin. Wayne pulled a knee ligament when he was leading at 5-0 in the first set, and from then on hardly was able to get off a dime.

Sabin and Gregory Mangin faced Bowden and John Pitman of New York in the men's doubles final today, and Sabin and Katharine Winthrop met Bowden and Norma Taubele in the mixed doubles title match.

Miss Winthrop was singles finalist against Virginia Hollinger of Dayton, O.

Gain Amateur Tourney Finals

Five of the Mansfield fighters participating in the N. C. O. amateur boxing tournament last night at Galion emerged undefeated to battle in the finals Friday night.

Marvin Glover, Mansfield welterweight champion, won on a technical knockout over Rosco Clements of Marion in the second round. James Thomas won on a forfeit. "Curley" Miller scored a technical knockout over Howard Richard of Marion in the second round, Paul Carbetta took a decision over Howard Hodges of Marion, while Beauford Glover drew a bye.

Carmel Loses.

Kid Carmel was the only Friendly House boy to drop his match. He lost a decision to Otis Scott of Marion. Jimmy Widle and Johnny Merkel were the seconds for the F. H. boxers Mike Wentz and Johnny Vilella are in charge of the youthful leather pushers.

TACKLES EX-CHAMP

PRINCE ILAKI

MANSFIELD wrestling fans will be offered a chance to see one of the most unusual characters in the game at the Armory Monday night when the Quality club stages its weekly show.

He is Prince Ilaki, a native of Bagdad, Arabia, who meets the Great Mephisto, ex light-heavyweight champion of the world, in the main event.

His grandfather was sheriff of Mosul, a title head conforming in power to the position of mayor, according to the advance copy. Prince Ilaki would have eventually come to be sheriff himself, thus explaining the title of "Prince."

When still a youngster, the Prince's family decided to come to America He studied at the University of California, majoring in science, and wrote and lectured in his off moments.

The Arabian star has ambitions to be a writer, and at present, is working on a novel.

Ilaki started his wrestling career at the university in 1931. In addition to being a member of the mat team, he was on the varsity swimming squad.

He won the platform diving title in the Far Western Aquatic championships in 1931 and finished second in the national meet.

One of Iloki's feats is a dive off the Anthony Wayne high-level bridge in Toledo into the Maumee river. No other diver has ever attempted the feat.

Ilaki took up professional wrestling in 1933. He is a riot of color on the mat. His knowledge of new holds is amazing, say grappling experts.

The semi-final match on the card will pit Joe Magyar, Hungarian star, against Sterling (Silver) Davis, Texas Ruffian, R. R. (Railroad) Routt, Louisville, meets Joe Wolfe, Columbus, in the opener.

LOST LADY + + +

By GEORGE E. HOLT

INSTALLMENT X

Maybe this hunchback was merely a decoy, Murray thought. Maybe they had been waiting for him at the garage of Jose's cousin Manuel, knowing that his car had been parked there before he went to Rancho La Luz.

Quickly Murray reached over and switched off the lights of the car. Then with one hand he drew his gun, and with the other pressed the horn button. But as the horn shrieked he released the button, reached over and sized the hand that held the message. Slid from the car, as the door of Manuel's habitation was flung open, and Jose came hurrying toward the car.

"It is you, Don Murray?" called Jose.

"Yes, Jose, Come and see who this is."

But with a sudden twist the hunchback freed himself. He did not, however, run away, but spoke from the darkness, complainingly.

"This is nice treatment," he said, "when I merely carry a message from a senorita to the American. Very well, I shall go. Although I expected at least a peso for my services.

"Not so fast, hombre," Jose told him, and started for him. But the hunchback was gone.

Jose returned to find Murray reading the message in the lights of the car, which he had again switched on. He stood in silence until Murray looked up.

"It is a note from the girl Dolores, asking me to come to the Cafe Mexico City, as she has something of importance to tell me," he explained.

Jose grunted.

"And of course you weel go, and Red Vasquez and hees gang weel be veree pleased to shoot you full of holes. Childeesh. Their brains they must be getting soft from tequila."

Murray lighted a cigarette, offered Jose one. Pondered.

"I think I shall go, Jose," he said at last.

"Well, hell, senior; I knew that all the time. So I, Jose Verdugo, weel go weeth you, and get the skin of Jose Verdugo also shot full of holes, so that my cousin's woman can use eet like a seive. But I theenk there ees something else, senor."

Murray nodded.

"The handwriting of this note," he said, "is the same as that of the letter which Tom Castle got from Tijuana. The letter signed 'A Friend.'"

"Oh. So you theenk thees girl Dolores ees the one—and that thes other one, Carmen, she ees Mr. Castle's daughter, eh? Maybe?"

"Quien sabe, Jose? Who knows?"

"Si, senor. And who knows eef thees girl Dolores did write thees nice leetle not w'at you have?"

"That is waht I want to find out, Jose," the American explained.

"Me. I theenk she ees a trap, Don Murray. I theenk thees ees nice leetle put-up-job, w'at you say. I theenk you better get one tank, like they use in thee war, and go in eet. Me too, I betcha."

"You're not afraid, Jose," Murray laughed, knowing that Jose was afraid of nothing that walked.

"You damn tootin' mister," Jose told him. "I'm afraid. So w'at?"

"Tell Manuel to put this car in the garage, and let's go."

Manuel came at Jose's shout, and then the two men took their way toward the bright lights and the Cafe Mexico City. Murray's gun was loose in its holster under his left arm, and Jose's was within quick reach in his trousers band, covered by his coat.

They had not gone half a block in darkness when a figure staggered long toward them. A figure humming "La Paloma" and trying, not unsuccessfully, to stay on the sidewalk.

"Somebody I theenk he ees happy," said Jose. "But also I theenk—w'at you say?—safety first, huh?" and he drew his gun.

The man staggered up to them. Started past. Jose kept watch of him, gun ready.

The song continued, but it had strange words:

"Si a tu ventana llega una paloma . . .
The senorita wants Senor Kilbourne
To stay away from the Cafe Mexico City . . .
A Chinita que si, a Chinita que no . . .
Regardless of what it said in the note . . ."

The fellow staggered on, getting back now to the proper words of the song.

"Huh!" Jose grunted. "Funnee theengs come out of the dark, Don Murray."

"Very funny, Jose," replied Murray. "I wonder who that was."

"That," Jose told him, "was Pablo Sanchez. I see heem at Rancho La Luz. When he has been smoking thee marihuana. Now he ees full of tequila, also, maybe. Maybe not. But w'at you goin' do now, Don Murray? I theenk we better deeg one beeg hole an' get eento cet, don't you?"

"Sure," agreed Don Murray. "But—let's dig it in the Cafe Mexico City, eh?"

"That, she's wa't I expect," Jose sighed. "All Americans they are dam' fools—and me, I been American three years now. Viva George Washeengton."

In a room on the second story of the grocery store of Juan Gomez five men, earlier that night, lounged about, smoking and drinking tequila.

The room was badly lighted, a couple of ancient electric light bulbs furnishing the only illumination, and the smoke was thick. But neither the dim light nor the tobacco haze could conceal the unprepossessing faces and figures of the five men.

One of them was Red Vasquez, upon whom the other four kept their eyes.

One was Pedro Gordo—Peter the Fat—a bigger man than even Vasquez, his chief. A face much resembling a pig's face. Small, light-blue eyes, long nose, fat jowls. But Pedro Gordo possessed not the spirit of the pig, but the unthinking courage of the wild boar.

One was Gregorio of the One Ear, whom Pablo Sanchez had seen with Red Vasquez. Gregorio's ear had been nailed to a door by Red Vasquez's predecessor as chief of the gang, Gregorio having been caught unwisely eavesdropping upon a little conference of his chief.

One was Juan Gaudalupe, a small man with face deeply and thoroughly pitted by smallpox. Small, but with a reputation of being the best knife thrower in Baja, California.

And the fifth was Edwardo Avila, a dark-faced, lanky fellow with a white scar across his left cheek—a mark of the knife, and skill, of Juan Gaudalupe before the two had become friends and fellow members of Vasquez's gang.

These four were Red Vasquez' lieutenants, scores of other ruffians obeyed him through them. And yet it appeared that Red Vasquez was not the supreme head. For now he was saying:

"I want to warn you all that the chief is not entirely pleased with us. I do not know why. I suspect that one or more of you have been—shall we say—indiscreet?"

Slowly his head turned and his gaze blazed upon each one of them in turn. Hard-boiled as they were, all quailed before his look. He laughed, and there was menace in the sound.

"Indiscreet!" he repeated. "That is good. That is excellent. The sort of indiscretion that gets a knife or a bullet and sends a disloyal soul to hell. Indiscreet! But El Jefe knows how to take care of such. And so do I. So walk carefully, that there may be no more widows in Tijuana."

And now each one of the gangsters made haste to swear his innocence of lapse, to make urgent professions of past, present and future loyalty. To all of which Red Vasquez shrugged. And when they had finished said:

"Very well, very well; we shall see how our present business goes. After which matters will be clearer."

It was part of his system to throw a scare into his followers every once in a while, as a matter of discipline, knowing that only fear or cupidity kept them in line.

But this time he was himself somewhat worried. El Jefe—the Chief— had indicated dissatisfaction without giving reasons, and dissatisfaction on the part of El Jefe might very well mean a sudden and unhealthy retirement of Red Vasquez. Such being the case, he had seriously considered the killing of one of his henchman—any one; it made little difference—merely as a warning. But at the moment he needed them all; things were doing. Afterwards he could come back to the idea.

"It must be all perfectly clear to you, then, what our procedure is be. The raid on the Rancho of Don Vicente Torres is to begin at precisely nine o'clock at night. Not at eight-fifty, nor at nine-ten, but at nine o'clock. You will all be in the places I have assigned to you, and will see that your own men are prepared. Let there be no slip-up. And let there be no time wasted in getting our loot to the border—and across. There need be no fear that the rurales will bother us. They will be entertained elsewhere, as I have said, until the show is over.

"Does it matter who gets killed in this raid?" Peter the Fat asked. "I mean, of the people of Rancho La Luz?"

"Only Don Vincente and his Daughter," replied Vasquez. "They are not to be injured. They are too valuable property to destroy. Some day..." He broke off suddenly. Not wise to tell plans in advance. "They are not to be harmed. Overcome them, if necessary, but if either one of them is killed, there will be some sudden fatalities among you boys."

(To Be Continued.)

In "Big Broadcast of 1938" and "Thrill of a Lifetime' she wears conventional clothes, but in her three last pictures she wore South Sea sarongs . . . Bob Burns is Cunnel Burns now, for he was recently appointed to the staff of Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma, as a full fledged "staff colonel." Bob is currently appearing in "Tropic Holiday." . . . Joan Bennett will play opposite Randolph Scott in "The Texans." . . . Gladys Swarthout's screen career is going full steam ahead since the release of "Romance In the Dark." Paramount is making extensive plans for her next three pictures.

"Sally, Irene, Mary."

A flock of stars will burst upon the screen of the Ohio with the midnight matinee tonight when 20th Century-Fox' musical comedy romance, "Sally, Irene, and Mary" is presented there. Alice Faye, Joan Davis and Marjorie Weaver are the three feminine stars who have the same roles that were played in the silent version by Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett and Sally O'Neil. Tony Martin will romance with his recent bride, Miss Faye, while Fred Allen of "Town Hall" fame, Jimmy Durante and Gregory Ratoff line up in the male contingent. The three girls are a vaudeville trio under the management of Allen, and romance hits a new low between the two leads when a siren (no less than Louise "Gyps, Rose Lee" Hovick plots to back a show for the handsome Tony. There's complications, but there is also melody and comedy.

Smith Ballew Show.

A stage presentation augmented with the usual screen bill is in store for patrons of the Madison theater Sunday and Monday. Smith Ballew, of "Roll Along Cowboy" remembrance and a dozen or so Western films, tops the stage attraction. He brings with him on his personal appearance tour his Beverly Hill-Billies, recruited from the singing cowboys that roam the plains of Hollywood. Ballew is something over six feet, a native Texan, and has a nice voice. On the screen is "Little Miss Roughneck," featuring Edith Fellows and Leo Carrillo. The latter's name is decidedly familiar, but many will need to be reminded that little Miss Fellows has been the "brat" in several pictures, notably "These Three," "Maid of Salem," and "She Married Her Boss."

"Penrod and Twin."

Remember the gang of Junior G Men who went into action in "Penrod and Sam?" They get busy again in "Penrod and Twin Brother" which brings the interesting Mauch twins to the Majestic for two days starting tomorrow. Billy and Bobby Mauch (Mowk) portray the characters that were first created for delighted readers by Booth Tarkington, noted Hoosier novelist and great delineator of boyhood. The boys and their gang of youthful law enforcement "officers" put to rout a bunch of bad men. Spring Byington, one of the most believable of screen mothers, and Frank Craven are in the cast. The second feature is a re-issue of a Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Blatto."

"Heidi."

America's biggest box office attraction, who brought more money into the picture industry last year than any other, is the starlet of the Ritz bill tomorrow and Monday. Shirley Temple in the beloved "Heidi" is booked for that theater, with Jean Hersholt, as the crusty mountain hermit who is wooed back to civilization by a very small granddaughter. Heidi's great adventure, her flight from the mountains and her unhappiness in her new home, all a familiar story to children who have read the book, is brought to the screen in realistic manner. Shirley has a new song, which she does in her best manner, "In Our Little Wooden Shoes."

SEES ROOSEVELT LOSE 3RD TERM

Wheeler Says He'd Be Nominated But Not Elected.

BOSTON—(AP)— A declaration that President Roosevelt might be nominated for a third term, but if so he would be defeated, came from Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.)

The Progressive western senator, who split with the president over the court bill, made his statement at a press conference.

"If the president is a candidate for a third term," said Wheeler, "he undoubtedly would be nominated. But I don't think anybody could be elected for a third term."

COUNCIL URGED TO ACT ON WPA PARK PROJECT

C. of C. Committee Calls On Solons to Consider Plan For Improvements.

City council's parks and finance committee had before them today a request from the parks and city beautification committee of the Chamber of Commerce asking consideration of a WPA city parks project calling for the expenditure of $25,000, three-fourths in federal funds.

In a communication to council, G. V. Sowers, chairman of the chamber's committee said: "It is generally recognized that Mansfield parks are in a badly run down condition and much needs to be done in the way of rehabilitation and improvement in order that they may serve the community in the way they were intended."

He pointed out that while the city has been without sufficient funds to maintain and improve the seven units in the past few years, it now has an opportunity of acquiring federal aid through a WPA grant of $19,000.

$6,000 City's Share.

He urged early enactment of legislation that would appropriate $6,000 to finace the city's share under the proposed project, for "two obvious reasons: that much of the work should be done during the spring months, and that it would provide employment for those now eligible for WPA assignments."

The proposed project, discussed at the last Town Hall meeting, includes cleaning out of dead trees, beautifying unsightly spots, building stone walks and ramps through the parks and over embankments to the streets, improving the roadways, tearing down all unattractive buildings, and installing equipment to make the parks practical for outdoor recreation centers.

It calls for approximately $19,000 in WPA funds and $6,000 in city funds and would provide work for 80 men for a period of four months.

The project has been approved by the district WPA office and is awaiting an appropriation from city council before it will go to Washington for final approval.

SMALL PRICE CHANGES RULE STOCK MARKET

American Can, General Electric, National Distillers Advance Shade.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Small price changes either way ruled today's early stock market dealings.

Up a shade were American Can, National Distillers, Anaconda, American Smelting, Electric Power & Light and General Electric.

On the downside were Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, Douglas Aircraft, Montgomery Ward and U. S. Steel.

Holders of steel shares read with some interest predictions the mill operating rate for the industry may be stepped up to around the 40 per cent level next month. The improvement, it was said, would be due partly to seasonal factors and partly to inventory replenishments.

A pickup in freight loadings in April also was looked for by observers of transportation trends. Recent poor shipping totals, it was recalled, have been accounted for largely by a sharp contraction in the movement of coal.

buy a safe to guard against any further incidents of the sort.

In the meantime however the remaining records of the commission and current examination papers had been transferred to the office of secretary of the commission, Atty Biddle.

Dr. Benedict said he could give no reason why anyone should want any of the records other than former examination papers to learn what questions that might be presented to persons taking the exams.

This possibility has been precluded by establishing a complete new list of examinations for the present classes which took the quiz last night and for applicants who will take exams tonight for police and fire positions.

Biddle reported that a class of 17 had taken the examination for the janitors' positions last night and that 13 applicants for policemen and 31 applicants for firemen will take the quiz tonight.

The papers, he said, would be graded next week.

NO BIGAMIST

Ballerina Denies Hubby Wed to Another Woman.

PHILADELPHIA — (U.P.) — Irina Baronova, 19-year-old premiere ballerina of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, secluded herself today after denying charges that her blond husband, Germaine Sevastyanov, was a bigamist.

The charges were filed in Newport, Ky., by a woman who said she was Lydia Sevanstyanov and that she married Sevanstyanov in November, 1928. She told Kentucky authorities, and learned only recently that he had eloped with Miss Baranova to Newport in February, 1936, while the company was playing at Columbus, O.

Miss Baronova appeared in Mansfield last year with the Monte Carlo ballet, in the first number on the Civic Music association program.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON —(AP)— A few buyers were in the Boston wool market yesterday but they were taking very little wool.

When they had needs to cover, they paid full asking prices. Quotations were fairly firm on good French combing length fine territory wools in original bags and 12-months Texas wools at 62 to 65 cents, scoured basis. Buyers showing an interest in three-eights and one-quarter blood bright fleeces were bidding around 25 cents in the grease. Most houses wanted 26 to 27 cents in the grease for either grade. Combing three-eights blood good grade fleeces realized 28 cents in the grease from a buyer with an urgent need for wool.

WATER PLANS NEAR REALITY

Councilmen Told Program Can Be Divided Into 9 Steps; Defers Financing.

without WPA aid would cost the city $225,000, he said. It would provide three months' work for 200 men now on PWA.

While the question of financing was deferred until next week, it seemed generally agreed by the committees that the city would issue mortgage revenue bonds to be paid from the income of the water department for at least a part of the first leg of the program.

This would include re-inforcements in Woodland to bolster the pressure in that section and would amount to approximately $90,000, if done as part of a WPA project.

Included in this part of the program would be the construction of a tank tower and booster pumps at the reservoir to cost $20,000, the only part of the project to be done under private contract.

Constructed by WPA would be an 8-inch main on Woodland road from the reservoir to Marion avenue, and then to Cline avenue at a cost of $10,000.

Construction of valves and gates at the tank tower would cost another $5,000. A high capacity main to serve the mercantile district is estimated at $55,000 and would be laid from the reservoir to Blanche street by the way of Cook road and Lexington avenue.

Mock pointed out that these projects were ones that would have to be given immediate attention in order to bolster the pressure in the Woodland area.

The second leg of the $142,000 program, amounting to $52,000 calls for the extension of the 20-inch main on Lexington avenue to the downtown district as far as West Fourth street, a 12-inch main on West Fourth street from Main to Penn avenue, another on Barnard and Euclid and Marion avenue from Bartley avenue to Glessner.

GOT TAGS ON?

It's OK to Display Your 1938 Licenses Today.

It became legal to display the new 1938 automobile license plates today.

The date was moved forward by five days this year so that persons purchasing used cars during National Used Car week could change immediately to new licenses.

The Mansfield Auto Dealers association had planned a parade the first part of the week, but because of the uncertain weather, decided against it. Instead they secured permission from Safety Director Tracy C. Styert to park their cars along the street in front of their places of business.

R. B. Gardner, chairman of the Used Car week committee, said today that there had been more activity in the used car market yesterday and today than for many months. Special prices are being offered with a 20 per cent reduction an all late models. The special prices will be in effect through March 12 when the national week ends.

Sherman and his wife and two other daughters, Emma Lou, 4, and Nancy Joe, eight months, suffered serious burns. The fatal blaze started when kerosene exploded while Sherman was using it to revive a fire.

PLAN TO RENEW VIGIL

WAUSEON—(AP)—Willis Bailey of Delta, head of the Fulton county unemployed organization whose members occupied the courthouse Thursday and withdrew yesterday, said today they would renew their vigil in the building if township trustees failed to reach an agreement with them in a proposed meeting at Delta Tuesday. Bailey said the organization sought a local works progress administration certifying office and upward adjustment of payments.

CONGRESS RACE TO TOP PRIMARY

District Contest In Spotlight With Only Three County Posts to Be Filled.

sional race, it was learned from reliable sources today, but Woodward has made no move as a candidate, it was understood.

A battle looms in the county Republican camp over the election of a 17th district committeeman.

With former Mayor McFarland already endorsed for the post by the county Republican central committee, R. B. Gardner, Mansfield G. O. P. leader, has indicated he will be a candidate.

The post is held by Harvey Hammond of Danville, who, it is believed, will not seek another term.

Since Richland county has never had a Republican central committeeman in the 17th district,, G. O. P. leaders here believe it is the county's turn to elect one and are seeking the support of the other five counties in the district for a Richland candidate.

In the county picture, C. L. Mitchell, only commissioner whose term expires this year, and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, both Democrats, have indicated they will try for re-election, and it is believed they will have little, if any opposition, at the primaries.

While Ralph C. Lutz, Democratic representative to the general assembly, has not announced he will seek re-election, county party leaders believe he will be in the race again.

The only Republican possibility mentioned for any of the three county posts is Harry R. Maxwell, Lexington, who is reported to be seeking the nomination for state representative against his fellow-townsman, Lutz.

MORE COLD DUE

Winter to Return Tomorrow, Says Weather Forecast.

The Richland county area, which was served an ice storm, a thundershow and spring-like temperatures in the past 24 hours, will get another taste of winter Sunday, the weatherman predicted today.

Rain and mild temperatures will give way to snow and a marked drop in the mercury tonight, with Sunday to be fair and much colder, the forecast said.

Freezing rain caused a coating of ice to form on streets and highways late yesterday, and city and county authorities reported a number of collisions, one resulting in head injuries to Mrs. Ralph Schleenbaker, of Galion.

Mrs. Schleenbaker is in General hospital where her condition was reported as "fair." She was injured at the Erie subway on Park avenue west road late yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding collided with one driven by H. F. Cross, 36, of Galion.

A thunderstorm, the first of the new year, brought a heavy shower to Mansfield early today when the mercury rose to 54 degrees.

ROYALTY GUEST AT WHITE HOUSE

Sultan of Muscat, King Zog's Sisters Visit President, Wife.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The pretty Princesses Zogu left the Sultan of Muscat and Oman in complete command today of the capital's week-end royalty rodeo.

The sisters of King Zog of Albania spent a few hours here yesterday, drank tea with President and Mrs. Roosevelt and then beat it back to New York. However, they said they would return for a five-day visit, which will outdo the sultan by a day.

Diplomatic fears lest the two groups of invading royalty bring up a question of precedence didn't materialize.

HUNT FOR LOST SHIP HAMPERED

Flood, Fog Slow Up Search; Father of Mansfielders on Plane Improved.

power house at Big Creek, in the Sierras.

The plane was on a shuttle flight, from San Francisco to Los Angeles, where it was to have connected with the Transcontinental eastbound liner.

There were 13 planes in the air yesterday, searching the area, including three army bombers and three naval planes. Seventeen more planes had been assembled at the Fresno airport. The pilots were half-blinded by snow in the mountains and found no trace of the lost liner.

The ground searchers, including 300 from a C. C. C. camp, made little headway and were kept standing by mainly so that a pilot could signal to them if he should sight the lost plane from the air.

It had been planned today to send out five planes first for a circular formation flight about the mountains. A dozen more planes would be kept in readiness at the airport. But the threatening flood made today's schedule uncertain.

A trip on foot and horseback yesterday by B. M. Doolin, superintendent of the San Francisco Municipal airport, and William Coyle, chief pilot of the TWA western division, turned the hunt today to the snow-covered region 45 miles northeast.

The pair interviewed 100 residents of the area, 30 of whom said they heard the plane and two of whom said they saw it.

Doolin said he was certain the ship came down near Bass Lake.

"It appears certain the plane crashed 10 minutes flying time northwest of power house No. 3," said Coyle.

The powerhouse is about 45 miles northeast of Fresno.

It was in this area that Mrs. C. C. Landry and her husband, a power company official, reported sighting the airliner about 9:30 p. m. Tuesray. (12:30EST).

CUTS THROAT

Attacks Wife With Ax Before Taking Own Life.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — George Frazier, 54, locked his 15-year-old daughter in a bedroom, struck his wife three times with an ax, and committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor at their home near here today.

Mrs. Calle Frazier, 41, his wife, was in critical condition with deep head wounds.

The daughter, Mary, did not awaken during the disturbance. Two neighbors found Mrs. Frazier wounded and Frazier dead when they called at the Frazier home at 7 a. m. to ride to work with him.

No motive for the attack could be learned by authorities. Frazier was an accounting clerk for the Big Four railroad.

treasurer of the Lutheran ministers of the Mansfield district, will serve as treasurer of the Ondov fund. Individuals, clubs and organizations who want to aid the divinity student, may send their contributions to Rev. Gilbert at 94 West Third street.

Other church groups in Mansfield and in this vicinity have shown a sympathetic interest in Ondov whose career was cut short after he and his parents had made many sacrifices to send him through college and into his second year at Hamma Divinity school.

He has been confined to General hospital since Nov. 5, paralyzed from the waist down.

Ondov is 24 years old and his home is in Cleveland. The accident responsible for his condition occurred near Hayesville when a car in which six Wittenberg students were riding failed to make a turn.

Friends and hospital attaches believe he has a 50-50 chance of recovery if the cause of his paralysis can be located.

Roosevelt Expected to Take Hand in TVA Clash

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

UNTIL a few days ago the governor of Ohio was only ACCUSED of heading a graft-corrupt and rotten administration, but it remained for him to CONVICT himself. In spite of the odoriferous mess brought to light, the investigating committee couldn't quite put the bee on Mr Davey—he said so himself—because he held all the decisive cards in his hands.

But by his frantic efforts to stymie that investigation, by begging and browbeating the house of representatives of the Ohio assembly to end that investigation before anything else could be uncovered, the governor convicted himself.

If he were indeed innocent of all this graft that was brought to light, then why was he so frantic to block the expose? Not only frantic, but one guesses there was something of terror in his efforts.

BUT MR. DAVEY, and that noble, upright companion of his bosom, Mr. Poulson, do not, to my mind, show up the worst in this Ohio mess which smells worse than anything that ever came out of Denmark.

The men who deliberately betrayed the people of Ohio were the members of the House who voted to kill the investigation. They may think up a great many excuses, reasons and alibis to offer to their constituents, but the plain unvarnished fact is that they voted to whitewash a governor and administration already discredited in the eyes of thinking people.

Ralph Lutz, "representing" the people of Richland county, voted to stop the investigation; an investigation which disclosed, among many other things, that the people on old age pensions lost about $82,000 through political favors. Even Mr. Davey admitted Monday night in his speech that this particular bit of chicanery in the liquor hauling deals, didn't "look so good."

Someone should tell Mr. Lutz that whitewash is a compound that comes off sooner or later; it couldn't possibly renovate an administration—it could only hide the dirt for the time being.

THIS AND THAT: We're beginning to suspect that the cast for filming "Gone With the Wind" is just a gag that goes on forever, like balancing the budget, prosperity is just around the corner, and two autos in every garage. . . . Are we ever lucky geographically? The Florida and California tornadoes and earthquakes and the Ohio river floods fail to reach us; while in case of war it would take the Germans or Italians quite a spell to reach us from the East and the Japs would have a whale of a chore to reach us from the West. . . . A salesman traveling through Missouri the other day, asked a native how business was, and according to the Versailles Statesman, the native said: "Business is so quiet you can hear the notes at the bank a block away drawing interest." . . .

Greta Garbo and Leopold Stokowski are vacationing in a century-old villa in a romantic little village in Italy overlooking the sea. They are living only for each other. It was probably an old-fashioned and ultra-conservative reporter who added to his cabled story: "But there is a possibility that they are married; that they even may be honeymooning here."

We hope.

GABRIELE D'Annunzio, Italian warrior-poet, went to join the Italian immortals this week, dying in his bed rather than in some glorious or spectacular manner as he had always planned that he should.

D'Annunzio can't be judged as an ordinary human being. He wouldn't make sense. Even shearing him of the thousand and one legends that have grown up around the man, he still is something that couldn't have happened. Because he was the hero and the villain; the gallant, death-defying soldier who was eternally afraid of death; a demi-god to his followers and a cur to the women who loved him.

He ruined their lives, wrecked their careers and broke their hearts—so that he could write more beautiful poetry. Every word that women said to him, every emotion he saw in their eyes—he blazoned to the world.

Personally, I owe a certain debt to D'Annunzio. While I was still in high school I had to wash the supper dishes every night, and that despised task was made bearable by the fact that I propped his "Paola and Francesca" in front of me and learned the whole poetical play, every word of it, while bathing the dishes. And you can't keep your mind on dirty plates while reciting lines about red roses growing in a black marble casket.

SOMEONE has said that "news is relative." And so it is; what is news to one individual, one community, may be just another headline of the moment to another community. Mansfield's tragedy this week was just another airplane crash to millions of people. While millions read it, and skipped over it with a "Too bad," comment, Mansfield was stunned and sick, and sleepless with sympathy.

In New Rochelle, N. Y. the parents of a 12-year-old boy are waiting with $60,000 in their hands to buy back their son from kidnapers. To the people of New Rochelle the Levine story is the most important one in the world today; to the people of Los Angeles, the flood story dims all others.

But in Mansfield, the floods and threats of war and political upheavals are of minor interest in comparison with the story which struck home.

News is news only as it affects the reader.

$30,000 Ready for Kidnapers of Boy, 12

FATHER ANXIOUS TO PAY RANSOM TO ABDUCTORS

Reveals One Attempt to Deliver Sum at Rendezvous In New York Fails.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (INS) — Nine days after 12-year-old Peter Levine vanished, the following notice was published in two New York newspapers today: 'Edward, mother ill and worried. Let us know where you are. You can keep your job. Brother.' It was believed that "brother" chose diversification of his notice to rate a better chance of contracting "Edward."

(By United Press)

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—Intermediaries for Murray Levine sought another rendezvous today with the kidnapers of his 12-year-old son, Peter.

The Ransom — $30,000 — was ready, but the harassed father, an attorney, revealed that one attempt to deliver it and recover his son had failed. An intermediary was unable to contact abductors at a rendezvous somewhere in New York City, of which New Rochelle is a suburb.

Receives Several Notes.

For the first time since Peter vanished nine days ago on his way home from school, Levine confirmed reports that he had received several notes from the kidnapers. He telephoned the office of Detective Lieutenant George Reifenberger, and dictated this statement:

"The last note received by me demanded $30,000. That amount is ready. The go-between directed by that note tried very hard to deliver the money but failed. He is still willing to act and so am I.

"I am sure that any other reliable person selected by the holders of my boy would also be willing to act."

Police, who have not entered the case officially in deference to Levine's desire to keep a clear channel open to his home, were well acquainted, however, with various details. They revealed that the distraught father was notified by telephone on the night of Feb. 24 that his son had been kidnaped that afternoon.

TELLS SON TO 'KEEP CHIN UP'

Father Forgives Young Slayer Who Killed Mother With Bread Knife.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Theodore Danielsen, who thought he had been bringing up a musical genius, decided today to forgive his son for killing his mother.

Danielsen interviewed his 15 year old son, Theodore, jr., in jail. Teddy told him that he had killed his mother with a bread knife. Father and son wept together and the father listened to the boy's story, his arms around him, his head bowed.

"I'm still your friend," the father said. "Keep your chin up. You're all I have left."

To police, Danielsen said:

"He has a very quick temper. We never spanked him."

Teddy played the piano well and his teachers called him an "embryonic genius."

Teddy killed her Thursday. She was making a cherry pie in the kitchen. She had learned that he hadn't been to school for two weeks. She reprimanded him and he picked up the bread knife off the table and ran it into her throat. He took $5 and her jewelry from his mother's purse and fled. Police arrested him yesterday.

NINE-YEAR-OLD GIRL REGAINS VOICE LOST THREE YEARS AGO

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH — Medical science and painstaking hospital care have made a singer out of 9-year-old Kitty Skoka, who three years ago could not speak above a whisper and sometimes was unable to do even that.

Christmas, Kitty burst into "Silent Night" and "Jingle Bells" while in her hospital cot, and now she can pick up any song with ease.

When Kitty was 6, she swallowed a jackstone while playing "jackstraws." She said nothing about it to her family for two weeks, and then she was rushed to a hospital writhing with pain and unable to speak.

The jackstone had lodged in her throat, causing an abscess which in turn caused a collapse of the trachea. Physicians inserted a metal tube in her throat and fought to save her life. Now, they say the trachea is healing and soon they may be able to remove the tube.

Kitty talked in a whisper for months, then her voice returned and nurses began teaching her the "three D's." They say she is an apt student. Kitty says she "likes school, but most of all I like dominoes and chasers." She explained that "chasers" is a game she plays with other children in the corridors of the hospital.

SUES TO HALT TIMBER CUTTING

Loan Company Asks Injunction and Judgment For $100.

An injunction to halt timber cutting operations on 198 acres of land in Washington and Monroe townships is sought in an action filed in common pleas court yesterday by the Citizens Savings and Loan company, Mansfield.

The plaintiff firm, which holds a mortgage on the property, contends that Fred Marshall and William Marshall, defendants in the suit, violated an agreement and cut timber valued at $100. A judgment for that amount in damages also is requested in the petition.

Included in the agreement was the provision that no lumber shall be cut from the land without the consent of the loan company, the action states.

Add Ralph Carroll, county juvenile officer, to the list of people who wonder what the younger generation "is coming to." Carroll joined the skeptics when he came out of his office to find a small boy, who was awaiting questioning in a theft case, playing marbles on the probate courtroom floor. It wasn't so much that Carroll expected the lad to be scared, but he thinks youngsters ought to show some courtesy when they come into court.

The two windows on the Walnut street side of Scattergood's store have attracted a lot of attention this week, and it is doubtful if anyone could pass them and not stop to look longer. In one window is a miniature South Sea island setting, with a pirate ship in the background, and a treasure chest in the foreground. The chest was filled with colorful costume jewelry. In the other window is a Chinese bazaar and Chinese merchants displaying Shantung. A large wicker basket and bottle of Chinese origin were "props" to the scene.

Christopher Frye, Civil war veteran and probably the oldest resident in Mansfield, refuses to coddle himself. The veteran who is only a year and a half from the century mark, fell on the pavement near his home Tuesday, breaking a blood vessel in his face. It was a painful injury and he was considerably shaken up, but he refused to go to bed or be bothered with it. He is coming along nicely, and in a few days the fall will be forgotten, he says.

AFRAID FEUD MAY IMPERIL HIS PROGRAM

President Makes Public Suggestion of Henchmen That Chairman Retire.

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, informed officials predicted today, will act soon to end the feud between directors of the Tennessee Valley authority regardless of any projected congressional investigations.

Mr. Roosevelt was represented as determined that internal dissension should not be allowed to imperil the success of TVA, designed as a broad experiment of his power and social programs.

The president evidenced that he was following the situation closely when he made public yesterday the suggestion of Director David Lilienthal and Vice Chairman Harcourt A. Morgan that Chairman Arthur E. Morgan retire.

Two days earlier, Chairman Morgan had criticized his colleagues sharply and, in effect, had said that the TVA could get along better without them.

Demands Investigation.

He also demanded a sweeping congressional investigation of the agency. Several proposals for such an investigation have been made.

While Chairman Morgan said the differences went far deeper, the outward manifestations of the dispute have been largely over power. In this, the clash has been principally between Chairman Morgan and Lilienthal.

Dr. H. A. Morgan, whose forte is agriculture, has not taken the initiative on this question, but has sided with Lilienthal.

The latter has sought to keep the TVA as aloof as possible from private power interests in the Tennessee basin, whereas his colleague-adversary has counselled more cooperation and a long-range program from joint distribution of power produced at TVA dams.

The Berry marble incident which precipitated the open break, mutual friends said, was only a manifestation of long-existing dissension.

Chairman Morgan, in his March 2 statement alleged a lack of "honesty, openness, decency and fairness" on the part of Lilienthal and Vice Chairman Morgan in "co-operating against my advice" with Senator Berry (D-Tenn) on his recently disallowed claim for 5,000,000 flood damages to his marble fields in the Tennessee valley.

The Lilienthal-Morgan letter to Mr. Roosevelt, written on Jan. 18, accused the chairman of trying to "rule or ruin" regardless of his minority position on the board.

HOME 'BOMBED'

Attacked as Protest Against Use of Hall by Browder.

TOLEDO — (INS) — A gas bomb attack upon the home of John C. Taylor, chairman of the school board, was investigated by police today. There was no damage.

The bomb, which was thrown from a passing car, was discovered by Mrs. Taylor. She called police, who said it was of the type issued to police and the national guard.

Taylor was to return today from an educational convention in Atlantic City.

His wife told police that they received an anonymous letter, written in red crayon, earlier in the week. It protested the use of a junior high school auditorium here for a meeting tonight at which Earl Browder, national secretary of the Communist party, is to speak.

Brothers Collide at Intersection, One Dies of Injuries.

INDIANA, Pa. —(AP)— An automobile and a motorcycle collided at a rural intersection, and 26-year-old S. W. Shearer, a farmhand, leaped from the auto to aid the injured cyclist. It was his brother, Edwin, 28, a farmer in another township. He died several hours later.

Granted Divorce From Employe of Senator Donahey

MOUNT VERNON —(AP)— Margie Heaton Dill, 22-year-old stenographer who collected a $5,000 judgment from her mother-in-law, Mrs. Grade Dill, for alienation of affections, was free of all marital ties today.

Common Pleas Judge Charles D. Hayden granted her a divorce late yesterday from Wendell Dill, Washington employe of U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey, after Dill did not appear to contest the action, based on a charge of wilful absence.

The divorcee won the judgment in 1936, alleging that her mother-in-law conspired with Dill's uncle, former U. S. Sen. C. C. Dill of Washington state, to break up her marriage, which took place May 29, 1934, the day after she and Dill were graduated from Fredericktown, O., high school.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—An old screen friend has passed from the picture, unheralded and unmourned. Gone is the lengthy fadeout scene, which used to signal us to get our hats and coats.

Time was when a movie-wise patron could be half-way through the exit before the hero had finished planting the fadeout kiss. Even if the patron weren't movie-wise, he would leave anyway because the lady in the seat ahead, who knew her signals, would be pinning on her hat and he couldn't see if he did stay.

But the protracted movie ending outlasted the hat pin era in feminine millinery by many a year. Long after the screen story was done, the villain disposed of and true love rewarded, the film kept trilling the screen. Through blooming cherry orchards the boy who'd get girl would stroll with her—usually into the sunset. Arm in arm, the happy pair would stroll down the blossoming lanes, while the wise audiences strolled, in the opposite direction, down the aisles and out.

About the only movie you can catch walking away into the sunset nowadays is a Charlie Chaplin picture. Chaplin likes to send his little tramp shuffling and swinging down open roads for the fadeout. But then Charlie on making pictures nowadays.

The ending of "Gold Is Where You Find It" came pretty close—George Brent and Olivia de Havilland standing on a promontory looking out over their fertile valley while Brent philosophized and the color camera caught California fruits in close-up. But there was a reason for that—the gold of the title sprang from those technicolored fruits.

Ordinarily, the wise producer today doesn't take time with such cinematic agonizing. He wants his picture to end with a bang—if for no other reason because a good bang will wake up the patrons and clear the house for the next show.

"It Happened One Night" has the perfect ending—a "flag scene" in which the stars did not appear but which was startlingly funny. "The Awful Truth" had another—the dancing figures on the cuckoo clock. "Tovarich's" finale summed up the whole tragi-comic story with a laugh. On the serious side, "Stella Dallas'" fadeout was a quickie. Barbara Stanwyck sees her daughter's wedding, through a window, turns and walks through the rain toward the camera—times! And the ending of "The Buccaneer" was practically sensational—Fredric March, with Franciska Gaal's lips upturned, did NOT kiss her in the fadeout, although as he looked out to sea you had the feeling he would get around to it in time.

None of which means that movie-makers have forgotten about sunsets. All of them know very well that comes the dawn. And they have nothing against blossoming orchards, either. But they all know very well that you won't sit through those endings.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The question is when did engineers learn to "talk."

The Engineers' club of New York city is noted for conversational powers of its members. They are the tops of engineering from all over the world.

But when it was proposed to start this club, just 50 years ago, this objection was made:

"You can't have an engineers' club, because engineers don't like to talk to each other."

The objector is believed to have referred to a tendency of engineers not to talk about social and economic welfare. That is what engineers lately have been preaching as the coming topic of greatest importance for their profession.

It appears that some time in the last few years, engineers have learned to "talk" about the social consequences of their work. They are the big appliers of scientific discovery.

They have decided to look to the social effects of their material works. Byron Eldred, president of the club, puts it this way:

"Then pen is mightier than the sword, and now in the last 50 years the slide rule has become mightier than the pen."

Eldred has learned to "talk."

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Saturday, March 5. "Whom having not seen, ye love." Read I Peter 1:1-9.

Who were the apostles? What constituted a man an apostle? One suggested answer is this:—An apostle was a man who had seen Jesus in the flesh, and had shared his earthly ministry.

Persons who have been specially privileged in religion tend to establish some kind of monopolistic control of the consequences of their experience. This is natural, and up to a point, right. They must not allow their trust to be dissipated. But primitive Christianity soon became something more than a matter of having seen Jesus in the flesh. There is, at first, a touch of pathos in that reference to "strangers scattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia." Not one of them had seen Jesus when he was on earth. They were late-comers and outsiders, who seemed to have only the remotest chance of ever becoming Christians. Yet in this passage Christianity is being made accessible to them, and through them to us twentieth-century citizens of a still more distant land—"whom having not seen ye love."

Prayer: Grant to us, O God, that by the eye of faith which parts the veils of time and Christ in the world which is sense, we may behold thy unseen and eternal, through the same Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

* * *

Sunday, March 6—"Their eyes were hidden that they should not know him." Read Luke 24:13-16.

Presumably these men had seen Jesus often, yet on this occasion they failed to see him. Can we wonder that the vast majority of persons never saw him at all, or having seen him were unwilling to believe their own eyes?

To us, with the vindication which many centuries have given to his life and work, it seems incredible that most of his contemporaries should not have recognized Jesus, whether as the revealed of God his Father, or as the long-awaited Messiah. Yet how hard it is to be sure of such things at the time.

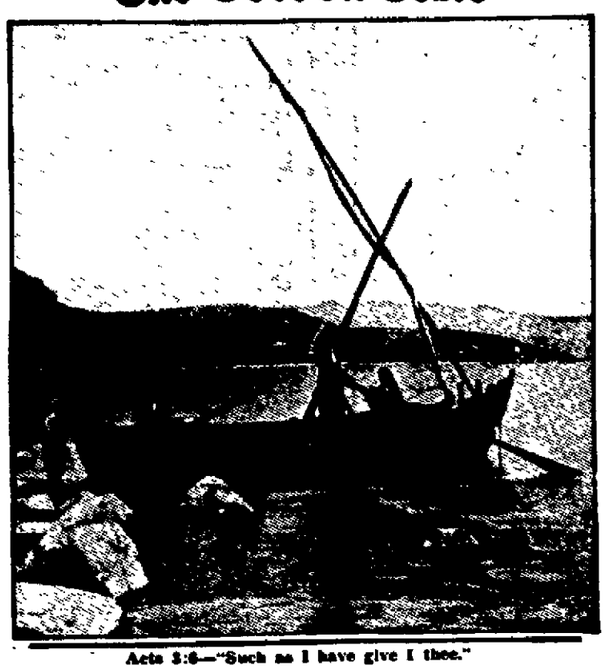

There is no least doubt that we are constantly missing plain intimations of the divine in our present world. Our failures in this respect are due to stubborn traits in the human mind and heart. We shall learn something about our spiritual blindness, by studying this week the reasons, as given in the Gospels, for the failure of the men of his own day to see Jesus for what he was.

Prayer: Give us, O God, the holy confidence that Christ is forever returning into the world which once he left, and that eyes which art holden may be opened to see him in the broken bread of words and deeds prompted by his most Holy Spirit. Amen.

10-DAY REVIVAL TO OPEN

A ten-day series of revival meetings will begin at 7:30 p. m., Sunday at the Shiloh Baptist church, 26 Wayne street. Services will be held each night with Rev. N. L. Scarborough, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, Columbus, as guest pastor, assisting Rev. U. S. Nunnerlyn, pastor. Rev. Scarborough is vice moderator of the Eastern Union Association of Ohio.

CITY'S BALANCE SET AT $90,000

Auditor Reports to Council On Municipal Finances.

A monthly report forwarded to city council today by Auditor Paul L. Kelley showed that the city of Mansfield had a cash balance of $90,728.56 on hand March 1. This amount is approximately $1,000 less than the balance Jan. 1, Kelley said.

The total includes $7,460.96 in the general fund, $31,581.56 in the waterworks fund, $6,963.94 in the garbage fund, $3,012.83 in the sanitary sewer fund, and $41,709.27 in the special fund.

Kelley explained that the balances were low but that the general fund would be bolstered within the next few weeks with money from the curren tax collections.

MEET ON WORK RELIEF PLANS

Sword to Attend Session of County Engineers and WPA Officiels March 15.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword had been invited today to confer with state WPA officials and engineers from 20 Central Ohio counties at Columbus March 15 on a work relief program to help reduce the state's direct relief load.

Speakers on the all-day program will be Dr. Carl Watson, state WPA director, and G. J. Kane, state chief of operations. The afternoon session will be an open discussion for county engineers.

Sword, who said he would attend the meeting with Deputy Engineer Walter E. Rusk, indicated he would ask for a county-wide ditch program to provide employment for the most men at the least cost to the county.

"If we join in a road or bridge building program now, it will mean the expenditure of a large sum of money for the county's share of materials, and we can't spare the money," Sword said.

A number of drainage ditches in the county need cleaning, and projects of that nature require more labor than materials, he said.

The program for the March 15 meeting will include seven talks by WPA officials.

Beattie's Concert Ends Civic Music Season on Monday

Douglas Beattie, young California bass-baritone, will be presented to Mansfield music followers Monday night at Senior high school auditorium as the final number on the Mansfield Civic Music association program.

The organization will wind up its first season which has been successful both artistically and financially, with plans already afoot for next year. Under arrangements with the Civic Concert Service, Inc., and the NBC Artists Service, the Mansfield group was enabled to present the Russian Ballet de Monte Carlo, the piano duo of Nemenoff and Lubeschutz and now, as a final number, Beattie, who has sung in concert in Italy, New York, was basso of the San Francisco Opera company and soloist at the Hollywood Bowl.

He will present five groups of songs Monday night, with his accampanist, Robert Turner, at the piano. His Viennese group includes two numbers by Schubert and two by Brahms. A Russian group includes Cui's "Statue At Czarskoe-Selo."

Two operatic numbers will be aria from the Italian; one from Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" and the other from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." A group of folk songs and one of American songs, will include several favorite numbers.

Admittance to the concert is by membership ticket only.

SATURDAY, MARCH 5, 1938

Drive carefully tomorrow—don't spoil the good record 1938 has made up to now.

"Holds War Would Cost U. S. Freedom" says a headline. That's what any war costs any country.

People afraid of the "end of the world" through collision may be reassured by an astronomer who says that can't occur for at least three million years.

An Adopted Son Speaks.

HERE is a simple, honest statement from a naturalized American citizen who recently made a trip back to Central Europe. It may help some Americans, whose ideals are wobbling, to see straighter.

"I learned," he says, "that the majority of the people over there do not want Hitler or Mussolini. They want the same form of government as we have here, but they cannot form any kind of government; they have to accept the kind given them.

"Now, for you followers of Mussolini or Hitler here in America, I believe it is worth while for you personally to go over there and find out for yourselves how you would like those administrations. It does not make any difference whether you are American-born or naturalized American citizen; you would never live there if they would give you Germany or Italy tomorrow. Just one trip over is all you would care about.

"I met all sorts of people over there, and on the boat, people who have been breaking their necks to come back here again, and they appreciate America more than ever before. So please stop Hitler and Mussolini propaganda in America. Be thankful we have a republican form of government.

"I do not believe any country in the world has the freedom we have here. So make America better than what it is today, but don't knock America, and please don't support foreign dictator forms of government."

Can our American-born Fascists or Communists answer that?

Encouraging Figures.

THE National Safety Council finds much reason to be encouraged over national traffic figures for January, the only month of this year for which the national total has been calculated. The council reports a 17 per cent reduction in traffic deaths during January as compared with the same month of 1937, and a drop of 30 per cent as compared with December of 1937.

There seems to be good reason to feel "encouraged." Richland county, though, is in a position to feel positively elated over its record.

As of this date last year, Richland county had had five traffic deaths within its boundaries. This year, the toll has been two—less than half the 1937 figure.

If organized traffic safety groups are responsible for this reduction, they ought to get the credit. But regardless of the credit, the drop in traffic deaths ought to bring cheer to everyone, as it becomes more evident that automobile traffic isn't the same grim reaper it has been in the past.

Let's continue the safety drives—let's have more of them—let's keep every possible safety move in action.

Because no matter how great the reduction has been, there's still room for improvement.

Cupid's Vacation.

IT IS NEWS when air line stewardesses do not resign from their jobs in order to marry. One line that lost 51 stewardesses in 52 weeks reports that for the first time in a year a whole month has just passed without a resignation.

This, one can be sure, is only a temporary lull. The young ladies on the air lines are as competent and as charming as ever, and they'll resume stepping out for matrimony. Probably the official who does the hiring of the feminine first-aids to pleasant air travel has been grateful for a breathing spell. When the requirements are so strict as they are for air stewardesses, the swift and steady turnover must be a serious problem.

A stewardess must be young, healthy, attractive, with poise and social grace and a manner well suited both to calming the fearful and entertaining the bored. The more we think of that thirty day period without a resignation, the more surprised we are.

"Company manners for every day would mean greater happiness" says a woman's page writer. But wouldn't most of us crack under the strain?

Out-Dated Laws.

CITY and state statute books need an occasional house-cleaning. They become as full of useless lumber as the old fashioned attic. Workers on a WPA lawyers' project in Newark, N. J., have made a ten-month study of local ordinances. They found 10 per cent were obsolete and 50 per cent invalid because of later changes.

A few of the existing laws broken commonly by Newark citizens, and probably typical of others on the books, deal with playing games, selling oysters, candy or cigars, and quarrelling. All these activities are forbidden on the Sabbath by laws not even known to present-day citizens.

The result of the WPA disclosures is likely to be a general revision of the city's ordinances as soon as the survey is completed.

Other communities need not laugh at Newark. Their own records might reveal just as many antiquated laws. It is a good idea to dig out old ordinances now and then for popular edification. They show how greatly opinions and customs change. They suggest the unwisdom of making too many laws and legislating in too great detail on matters not directly connected with the welfare or government of the whole community.

Had you heard about the Washington druggist who finds business booming in spite of the recession? He's the chap the New Dealers are buying their headache powders from.

Men base social systems on the law of the jungle, and then wonder why they don't work.

What the nations need is to exchange commercial goods instead of shells and poison gas.

McIntyre's New York Glimpses

—By O. O. McINTYRE

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last column written by O. O. McIntyre. That long-familiar name will appear no more on this page. Beginning Monday, Westbrook Pegler, author of "Fair Enough" appears in The News-Journal. This is not to say that Pegler's column will take the place of the one "Odd" wrote. It is not a substitute for McIntyre, as such. No one could do Odd's job as he did it. Pegler's column is entirely different. But we believe that he does as good a job in his field as McIntyre did in his, and that News-Journal readers will like "Fair Enough." Pegler will appear on this page for the first time Monday.

PURELY personal piffle: In Africa a cocktail is called a sundowner. Dullest humor touch in modern literature—the Hyman Kaplan stuff. The celebrity Bucks—Gene, Frank and Pearl S. Fulton Oursler is the writingest of the magazine editors.

The only banker I have for coffee is with cheese cake. Frank Ward O'Malley, greatest reporter of his time, rarely wrote a sentence without a misspelled word. Several years ago Dale Carnegie suggested we get together to do some writing and radio broadcasting. I saw no percentage in that.

Abas that "Mister" in Paul Muni's billing. Two small town Missouri girls who made good in the city: Mary Margaret McBride and Nancy Randolph. A girl called Linda Lee sings popular songs as I like them over the radio. No story gets my laugh more than Cobb's about the Chinese wood chopper.

Sam Blythe's fine magazine articles are single spaced and runtogetherlikethisfromfirsttolast word. Fred C. Kelly was the first successful syndicated Washington correspondent. It depresses me to hear that a crack newspaperman like Paul Y. Anderson has been [illegible].

The late Newton D. Baker could answer two phones, dictate a letter and read a book simultaneously. A patriotic society is collating the Left Wing propaganda they claim has been concealed in the columns of three book reviewers and one dramatic critic, which may cause red blushes. If I love to hear a grand opera singer, I'll take Kirsten Flagstad. I once thought Mitzi Green a poisonous rat, but now that she is one of our cleverest entertainers. Fascinating street names: Tottenham Court Road, Piccadilly and Babbling Well Road in Shanghai. My grandfather [illegible] used to shine up an old copper cent on his corduroy pants.

Colin Malbado, a British native of Jamaica, and I lived for some time at the same note. In New York, and after a lapse of 12 years ran into each other recently. Although [illegible] he was [illegible]. I was also gray [illegible]. It is the stupidest form of [illegible] to make [illegible] on a [illegible] name. But somehow [illegible] and the [illegible] No other [illegible] as Reader's Digest and Life.

In 16 years association with my syndicate chief, V. V. [illegible], there has never been a single dissent [illegible] of [illegible] word. Both [illegible] The Count [illegible] I see the [illegible] on that [illegible] walk. For two winters I played billiards with the late [illegible], Lawrence D'Orsay, [illegible] The [illegible] and [illegible] helpful critic I [illegible] had in my writing is Meredith Nicholson. The [illegible] appetite I know is that of Herb Roth, the cartoonist. I've seen him order a minute steak for dessert after a whopping meal and eat it, too, with a relish. Best minute steak in the world, incidentally—at The Colony.

Our aggressive Boston Invariably looks at a clipped French poodle with astonishment and trots [illegible] on as though to say "Well, I'll be durned!" The only costume scene I can abide on the stage is a minuet with music box orchestration. That's a strange book John O'Hara Cosgrave, of the Dutch Treat and old Sunday World, has written. He calls it "Academy for Souls" and seems to have gone a bit mystic and discovered his soul and a Creator. Gelett Burgess is turning out a magazine piece on why some slang survives and the rest perishes. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon dulled the sting of a studio yawn by touring the world in personal appearance. I have a card from Australia. They are storing up something more valuable than money—travel memories. The city to me most reminiscent of Paris is Mexico City.

Secret urge: I've always wanted to get Clem McCarthy and Floyd Gibbons into a hot argument about something. And then let someone try to get in a word edgewise. After Grandma took me to the matinee of Lincoln J. Carter's "Fast Mail," they had to give me a sedative for two nights running, the excitement was that great. For a year afterward my entertainment fare was restricted to magic lantern shows.

WELCOME TO LOCHINVAR

Let's Look Around

Memphis, and a Glimpse of the River.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—All through a lifetime we may read of the Mississippi river, but the first glimpse of this great waterway is needed to bring real appreciation of the reasons why the Mississippi has entered so largely into the song and story of America.

Common knowledge to every school child is that the Mississippi rises in Lake Itasca, flows south and empties into the Gulf of Mexico, and common knowledge also is the fact that this giant stream, which sometimes reaches a width of two miles, occasionally goes on uncontrolled rampages, during which it sweeps over vast areas and does large damage.

As we see it now, from the bridge which extends across from Tennessee to Arkansas, it is a placid stream, moving gently along toward the gulf and amply able to carry the normal output of its many tributaries.

FOR those in Mansfield and surrounding country who are familiar with the story of the loss of the Steamer Sultana, on the Mississippi river near the close of the Civil war, a visit to Memphis and a look at the river brings that occurrence vividly to mind.

There are still living in Mansfield or vicinity a number of sons of Sultana survivors, and Harry L. Lowrey is the grandson of a Civil war veteran who lost his life in that disaster—the father of the late George H. Lowrey, former mayor of Mansfield.

At Vicksburg, in April, 1865, the steamer Sultana, a St. Louis to New Orleans packet, took aboard more than two thousand federal soldiers who had just been released from Confederate prisons at Cahaba, Ala., Macon and Andersonville, Ga., and were en route to their homes in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia. One hundred were from the 102nd regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, which was organized in the vicinity of Mansfield and was camped just north of the city before leaving for service.

Heavily overloaded, the Sultana left Memphis around midnight April 26, 1865. About eight miles north of the city, opposite Tagleman's landing, a boiler exploded, followed by fire. All aboard were thrown or jumped into the river. More than seventeen hundred were killed. A few hundred managed to escape, in one way or another, and these were members of what for many years was known as the Sultana [illegible], which held [illegible] in Mansfield.

One of those survivors was my father, who managed to keep afloat on a piece of wreckage until after daylight, when he was picked up by [illegible] more than twenty miles down the river from the scene of the disaster.

MEMPHIS, largest city in Tennessee, [illegible] approaching 300,000 [illegible], [illegible] busy south in its progress and is the largest inland cotton market in the world, handling over a million bales a year. Its annual Cotton Carnival is an attraction throughout the south.

Its 52 parks cover 2,000 acres, linked by wide parkways and its early spring encourages a beautification program in which there is widespread co-operation among citizens.

Just now a movement is on foot to concentrate on the planting of crape myrtle as an all-round beautifying plant, this having been adopted, by popular vote, as the official shrub of Memphis—the hope being, as expressed by the Press Scimitar, that this will "put Memphis on the flower map, like Washington, Mobile, Portland and other cities."

Along a number of residence streets folks were out mowing their lawns today—which makes rather a long season for lawn-mowing but quite a short one for snow-shoveling.

WHILE tourist camps and cabin accomodations of various sorts are common to many sections, it appears to be in the vicinity of Memphis that the de luxe development of "Tourist Courts" has reached its highest point—possibly due to the advantage of a long season.

In any event, the tourist court, with a combination of home comforts and hotel conveniences, is being worked out in an unusually attractive way hereabouts, and recommendations of some of the home folks were so convincing that the appeal could not be resisted.

REVERTING to Nashville for a moment, the visit to Andrew Jackson's fine old home, "The Hermitage", was all that could have been desired.

More than a hundred years old, the stately mansion in which General Jackson lived during his final years, centers in well-kept grounds of the Hermitage farm of 500 acres. It is built in colonial style of architecture, with large verandas in front and rear, a wide hallway, with eleven spacious rooms, on which is the original wall paper, including some of pictorial design ordered specially made for General Jackson.

Among early visitors at the Hermitage were President Monroe, Marquis de LaFayette and many other celebrities of that period.

A marble tomb marks the burial places of Jackson and his wife in the garden in the rear of the Hermitage.

During a considerable part of the year visitors to the Hermitage each as many as five hundred a day—coming in cars from every state.

As high a tribute as was ever paid to Andrew Jackson is that he was absolutely and rigidly honest, without fear and intensely patriotic.

NASHVILLE, with five universities and colleges, including Vanderbilt, and fourteen preparatory schools, is known as "the Athens of the South"—qualifying by having in its Centennial park a complete reproduction of the Parthenon, which crowned the Acropolis in ancient Athens.

Let's take a look at the map and see what comes next.

Listen, World!

To the Gals—Everywhere!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

NINETEEN days of storm! Nineteen days with the High Sierra turning somersaults ....howling, screaming, spitting hell-fire! Trees crashing—peaks smashing—rivers slashing their banks! Lightning, rain, sleet, snow—and a 100-mile wind ...wotta storm!

And through it all, a little bunch of 'phone girls—stuck! Wires down ....heat gone ...water rising.... wind roaring....there they sat on their high stools—plugging...plugging...plugging! Battling hell-let-loose to make connections with a lost and shattered world.

Tired. So tired! Wall-eyed.... gummy fingered with weariness ....yet they stuck. No front page headlines to buoy them on. No plaudits from a worshipping mob. Everybody too distracted with their own affairs to even notice them—YET THEY STUCK.

Out here, where I write—miles away a little boy lay, fighting for breath. Wind at the roof, snow on the sill, big trees trembling, falling in splintered files. "Central! Central!....For God's sake, Central!!!"

AND CENTRAL WAS ALWAYS THERE!

And today—the little boy smiles. And after you've laughed and cried, thank the little "centrals"—who STUCK!

And then, while your heart's still open ...while your vision's still wide ...think again, of those others who stick. All those other loyal little "gals"—

The waitress who kids you out of your morning blues when she brings you your morning's tray—

The hat check girl who wisecracks you out of your evening's peeve as she takes your coat—

The manicurist, brother, who listens to your office peeve while the barber gives you your shave—

The beauty operator, sister, who helps you cry off your latest domestic brawl while she slaps your jowl into shape—

Think of them all!

THE GALLANT LEGION OF GALS!

By the millions I've met them, talked to them, cussed with them, cried with them — everywhere. Beauties—most of them. Polished and perfumed peaches—on sixteen or maybe eighteen bucks per week!

Expected to be pertty....expected to be smart....expected to be good....expected to STICK....on sixteen—or eighteen—bucks per week!

Yet, all the time—there's hardly a one who isn't supporting some gentle old mother, some feeble old father, some weakling husband, some beloved little babe! Hardly a one who isn't meaning home and heaven for someone who's helpless ....and sticking, meantime, to the service of a brawling, cursing, impatient public who treat them like a bunch of mechanical gadgets!

So I'm saying—HERE'S TO THE GALS! THE FORGOTTEN GALS! THE BRAVE PATIENT, UNDERSTANDING, LOYAL LITTLE GALS WHO STICK...

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

Poverty is not a virtue—it's a disease!

Politics is the art of dealing with public opinion.

Nobody can have a monopoly on anything, save through the control of natural resources.

Men, women and children want their dinner; there is profit in supplying them and loss in depriving them.

What's become of the old time celluloid cuffs that rattled like a telephone sounder when the wearer shook hands?

An Ultra Modern Dwelling.

IN The American Home, March number, page 25, there are illustrations of a logical, economical, small dwelling house. Rather than being the conventional story-and-a-half type, which is wasteful, it is a one-story, center-hall type plan with the living room, dining room and kitchen on one side and the bed rooms and bath on the other; but each on a different floor level.

The bed room section is eight steps higher than the hall and living room section—"staggered" is the term applied.

The bed room section is about four feet eight inches above the living room section—this provides space for a garage under the bed rooms.

This is a logical separation in the departments of living in a one story dwelling, with a full height of ceiling in all rooms.

The roof is flat, forming space for an open-air lounge with a frame to support a sun-protecting canvas awning—it performs the same function as a porch, but with more privacy.

The cost of gables, dormers and roof hips and valleys has gone into brick exterior walls.

It may be regarded by the conventional home builder as being box-like in external appearance, but this could be easily and inexpensively relieved by boxes under the windows and around the parapet, or the walls extending above the roof, and in which flowers could be planted.

The Joneses.

THE reason young people so often succeed in their enterprises better than their elders is that they have not had the experience to fear failure.

Then, again, they have nothing to lose, everything to gain and plenty of time to recover from their defeats.

I had a visit last week with my old friend Dana Jones, a very fine newspaperman, now head of the Manufacturers' Association, Erie, Pa.

The Joneses have four children, the three youngest are now of high school age—I have spanked them all (in fun) when they were of tender years.

Dana said that last week there was a large committee meeting of high school students in his living room, his 16-year-old daughter acting as chairman, to arrange for a dance and to raise money to buy uniforms for the school band and gowns for the chorus.

They had already rented the largest hall in town, had contracted for a two-bus load, high-pressure Cleveland jazz band and had bought a lot of newspaper advertising space.

While the young people were in the living room with much enthusiastic and confused-voice comment on how much they were going to make, the Joneses, together with some of the other parent-neighbors, were in the dining room, in sad-eyed gloom, pencils in hand and paper before them on the table, and all figuring how much their offsprings were going to lose.

The dance has since been given—with a net profit of over $350!

The Joneses and their neighbor mothers and fathers are no doubt "problem" parents to their children.

J. Hampton Baumgartner.

I HAD another interesting visitor last week—J. Hampton Baumgartner—also a former newspaper man and now high in the official circles of the Lackawanna railroad in New York.

He said that he deeply revered the memory of his father; that in his bringing-up, his father's attitude was entirely one of correction rather than punishment, and that he had pursued the same policy with success in the rearing of his own five children.

As an illustration of this he said that he was brought up in Westminster, Md., where his father was a practicing lawyer. One day an Uncle Tom's Cabin company came to town with a whole herd of Great Dane dogs—this breed of canine being more dramatic, with their deep bass bark, than actual bloodhounds, a small-breed animal.

Hampton said that in consideration of two peanut gallery tickets he and other boys accepted the task of leading these Great Danes during a noon street parade—dressed in a long, gaily trimmed coats together with a pasteboard caps covered with red satin and a torch-like plume in front—all old band uniforms from a defunct circus.

As the parade went along the main street, his father saw him from his office window and sent his office boy after him with a request that he come to the office as soon as the parade was over.

When Hampton arrived before his father he was handed a quarter, told to go to a certain barber shop, have his hair clipped—clipped, not cut; to go home, take a bath with kitchen soap and not to put on his clothes until he, the father, arrived with a spray-gun and the proper liquid.

Now, the point to all this is that the father did not rush down, turn his dog-charge loose, tear off his uniform—didn't deprive him of his fun by the humiliation of punishment before the whole town—didn't even tell the office boy to have him come at once—administered common sense correction and after the parade was all over.

Hampton had read my recent story of Henrietta, the Hollendon hotel cat. Relative to the instinct of multiple-birth animals to return their young to the place where they were whelped, he said that in going through the Lackawanna station at Hoboken, N. J., one evening last week just at the hour when commuter traffic was heaviest, he observed the waiting room filled with passengers and commuter trains all leaving practically empty.

The attention of the crowd was concentrated on a large-scale working model of a Pocono locomotive, attached to one of the walls.

It seems that a day or two before a mother cat about the station had given birth to seven kittens in the tender of this locomotive model, that an attendant had discovered this cat family and had removed them to a padded basket placed under a Travelers' Aid official's desk in the main lobby.

This mother cat was restoring her brood, one by one, by the nape of their necks, to the tender of the locomotive model and had selected the heaviest traffic hour for the purpose.

The only space in the whole waiting room clear of humanity was a path for the mother cat in her task of transferring her young—she climbed a short flight of stairs and went along a narrow ledge projecting from a wall.

Every time she deposited a kitten in the tender of this locomotive model, why, the crowd applauded and cheered.

As Others See It

Those Shrinking Violets.

Senator Bulkley of Ohio, it is said, cannot understand why an office holder should be reluctant to make known his desires and intention to run again. Perhaps it is just the shrinking modesty and the lack of self-esteem that seem to possess all public servants.—Kansas City Times.
